Today

To Tax the President.
Cancer's Cost.
Chicken Men, Read.
Earth's Big Guest.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE Senate vote to make the President pay income tax on his salary will not affect President Coolidge unless he takes a second elective term. But it will emphasize the injustice of earned income taxes.

INCOME TAX on a coal mine charges off large sums for "depletion." Coal supply is reduced each year, so the tax is cut.

What about a doctor or other income earner? Are not his years of life and work, his brain and nervous energy diminished and depleted each year?

A tax system ignoring that condition is confiscation, not mere taxation.

ACTUAL money loss caused each year by cancer in America is estimated at $600,000,000, a loss as great as though 300,000 workmen were idle through the year.

This terrific loss, in which dreadful suffering by victims and their relatives is not the only important factor, could be reduced by three quarters, at least, if small growths on the body were not ignored until too late.

MR. FISK, head of the Metropolitan Life Company, and his associates, are to be congratulated on their ceaseless effort to make the public realize the nature of disease and its prevention.

A large sum spent each year by the Metropolitan in advertising warnings is worth to the country as a whole ten thousand times its cost.

INTERESTING to chicken men. Pennsylvania has three electric hatcheries, holding 47,000 eggs each. The eggs, put in trays at the top of a refrigerator-like arrangement, gradually sink down as days pass, until they reach the bottom, and the chicks walk out on the twenty-first day.

EMPTY racks rise to the top for more eggs and a constant stream of chicks pours from an incubator that never stops, eggs being replenished twice a week.

Cockerels are eaten; pullets, stimulated by high feeding, lay early, and electric lights burning in their coops, keep them eating after dark and increase egg output.

WHEN the hens, weary, slow down, they become chicken stew, and pullets replace them. A hard life, but not so different from ours. Nature gets rid of us, also, when our usefulness ends.

REAL-ESTATORS will gasp, reading of Chicago's new super-business building. It will be opposite the Wacker drive, 724 feet on Kinzie street, 577 feet along the river, cost $30,000,000 and have 4,000,000 square feet of floor space.

THIS worthy-of-Chicago building, a "mammoth merchandise mart," will devote the ground floor to a freight station, with private tracks for tenants.

On one side of the building a river dock will take in and send out goods by water.

Several hundred important merchants will do business in this building, twice the size of any business building now in existence.

IN politics and social theories, Russia's government may indulge in dreams. But, in daily life, Russians are practical.

Sovietism dressed up to receive King Amanullah of Afghanistan called him "Majesty" as unctuously as we should do in plutocratic America. Afghanistan has big trade.

RUSSIA is constructing a system of inland waterways to rival such work in France and Germany. The Volga-Don-Ozof waterway, now building, will give the Volga, biggest river in Europe, an outlet to th' sea.

THE VOLGA, navigable for almost its entire course, 2,300 miles, drains with its tributaries, 535,000 square miles. If that region suffered such floods as afflict the Mississippi valley Russia would do something about it more effective than talk.

JAPAN will make China regret killing Japanese soldiers at Tsinan-Fu. Japanese and Chinese accuse each other of atrocities, including torture, and ill treatment of women.

A Chinese official, Tsa Kung-Tse, had his nose cut off, eyes gouged out, and then was shot to death, according to Chinese.

THE Japanese can easily take revenge on China, but the latter, unable to fight Japan, will boycott Japanese merchants. The latest difficulty may cost Japan $50,000,000 in business boycotts every year, until China forgets about it.

JUDGE BROWN'S decision that continuous blowing of automobile horns violates the sanitary code, will please many.

Schopenhauer poured out his rage on Berlin coachmen because they cracked their whips. What would he say of our motor horns, exhaust whistles, backfiring cars, and sputtering, barking motorcycles?

Hitting the ear with hideous sound is almost as bad as hitting it with the closed fist.

STATE OFFERS TO BUILD TOWN HALL

A "Town Hall" adjoining the Gen. Albert J. Logan Armory, Thackeray and O'Hara streets, Oakland district, was proposed by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern today. At a meeting of County Commissioners, McGovern informed his colleagues that the State Armory Board would build an addition to the armory at a cost of 1,000,000 for town hall purposes.

County Commissioners have been considering including the town hall project in a coming county bond issue election. The present plans of the oCmmissioners are to spend in the neighborhood of $6,000,000 for the building. Commissioner McGovern, favoring the town hall project, has been in conference with state officials for the last month and succeeded in getting members of the Armory Board to agree to build the town hall adjoining the present Logan Armory.

"By adopting my plan," Commissioner McGovern said, "the county, if, anticipating spending $6,000,000, can save $5,000,000 by building the town hall next to the Logan Armory."

Commissioner McGovern said that when the building was completed the state would bear the maintenance cost in the future. "It would not cost the county a penny for maintenance," Commissioner McGovern said.

The proposed building would seat 14,500. The basement could be used by National Guard organizations of the city for military purposes, such as drills and maneuvers. The building, Commissioner McGovern pointed out, would be owned by the citizens of the county.

"In event that the State Armory Board should choose to evatuate the basement for military purposes the entire building would be used for civic purposes. In other words, at no time would there be any strings attached to the building by the state, said McGovern.

The proposition was discussed by Commissioners at a special meeting this afternoon.

DAM IS CRACKING

International News Service.

TABLE ROCK COVE, S. C., May 7.—Hope that the hand of man might stay the crumbling of the Table Rock Cove Dam, holding back 5,000,000,000 gallons of water at the head of the Saluda River Valley, diminished rapidly today.

The giant earthen structure was expected to give way momentarily as the Sauda River below the dam rose at the rate of more than a foot an hour and overflowed its banks.

Expressing grave apprehension that the rapid rise of the stream was due to a new break, engineers held little hope of saving the dam and ordered the danger zone cleared of all persons. Armed guards placed around the entrance to the gorge permitted no one to pass.

200 Pupils Strike

WHEELING, W. Va., May 7.—Two hundred students of Union High School, Benwood, went on strike today after Principal Chris Sanders had received a letter of dismissal from the school board.

The trouble is said to have started with the dismissal of J. R. Knotts as superintendent of Marshall county schools several months ago. J. D. Marple, president of the school board, refused to make a statement.

Train Kills Two

Two men were killed when their automobile was struck by a Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad passenger train at a crossing west of Coraopolis, shortly before noon today.

The dead are Elias Strong, 28, of First avenue, Coraopolis, owner and driver of the car, and William Stover, 26, same address. Both were employed at the shops of the Standard Steel Spring Company, Coraopolis.

Bush figures that the couple innings he worked did not take enough out of John to prevent his turning back the Beaneaters this afternoon.

Just a game and a half out of first place, the Buccos can aid their pennant cause materially by winning the contest today and taking three out of four from the Braves. For one thing, it will put the team in just the right frame of mind to enable it to play its best against the league-leading Giants, the ancient enemies of the Buccos, who will be here tomorrow.

BILL M'KECHNIE

A three-day suspension has been meted out to Bill McKechnie, former Pirate manager, now Cardinal manager, for using abusive language in an argument with Umpire Cy Pfirman after yesterday's doubleheader with the Robins at St. Louis. McKechnie is a Sunday school teacher in Wilkinsburg.

PUT ON SHELF 3 DAYS FOR SASSING UMPIRE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 7.—William McKechnie, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was today suspended for three days by John A. Heydler, president of the National League, for his alleged abuse of Umpire Pfirman in the dugout after yesterday's double-header between the Cards and Brooklyn Dodgers at St. Louis. It was Heydler's first suspension of the season.

McKechnie waxed wrathful over a decision at second base. Pfirman ruled that Frank Frisch, Cards' second baseman, did not touch the bag on a force play.

The suspension of McKechnie is the first handed out by President Heydler so far this season. No fine was involved in the punishment of the St. Louis manager, who has seldom, if ever before, felt the effect of discipline. McKechnie is one of the least aggressive of major leagu: pilots.

CHURCHES SCORE MINE PACT VIOLATORS

The long-waited report of the Federal Council of Churches on the coal strike was made public today by Dr. F. Ernest Johnson, of New York, executive secretary, at a luncheon of the Hungry Club at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

For the settlement of the strike, the report recommends the abandonment of belligerency by both sides, reconsideration by the operators of their decision to have no further dealings with the United Mine Workers, reconsideration by the union of the demand for the Jacksonville wage scale, pressure by the public to end the methods by which unionization of the southern coal fields has been prevented, study by the government of proposals for consolidations and co-operative marketing associations of the coal companies, and appointment by the President of a coal board comparable with the Federal Oil Conservation Board.

When Dr. Johnson had concluded his presentation of the report he was asked a number of questions. He was assisted in answering them by Dr. Arthur E. Suffern, an economist employed by the Federal Council of Churches in its investigation.

One question was if co-operation rather than competition was not necessary for the success of industry. The answer was that competition, instead of being "the life of trade," might be its death, if carried to the extremes that have been reached in the coal industry.

"Economics," said Dr. Johnson, "is becoming a social rather than a merely mechanical science. It has been found necessary to take account of human factors."

Dr. Johnson was asked how West Virginia could be persuaded to permit unionization of its coal mines. He said he could offer no practical plan other than the use of moral suasion.

One questioner suggested that complete unionization of the coal industry would mean the creation of a combination in restraint of trade, but he would not admit that.

REPORT NOT "WHITEWASHED"

There was a throng at the Hungry Club luncheon to hear Dr. Johnson's report. It was the fourth in a series of addresses that have been given before the organization on the coal strike, the others having been delivered by Prof. Colston E. Warne, of the University of Pittsburgh; R. Templeton Smith, secretary of the Lowber Gas Coal Company, and Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers.

"Insistence (by the miners' union) upon the Jacksonville scale . . puts the operators in the Pennsylvania and Ohio fields in an impossible position in view of the active competition of the Southern fields."

"At the same time the miners cannot be expected to accept even a temporary reduction in the scale unless the operators are willing to resume collective bargaining, and to give some assurance of steadier working time and increased annual earnings."

"Employers should be brought to a realization of that right (the right of the miners to organize) as a means of eliminating cut-throat competition."

"Until the fundamental ills of the industry, treated as a whole, are grappled with successfully . . . preoccupation with the humanitarian phases of the problem can accomplish little of a constructive nature."

Today was THE day for boys and girls whose daddies are Shriners. As guests of Syria Temple, they saw an extra special FREff performance of Sells-Floto Circus. Here you see the early birds getting their peanuts free. None refused.

SATISFIED

Jean Smith vowed that never had she eaten better peanuts. Miss Smith intends to write a piece for her teacher on what nice people Shriners are.

WHAT IS IT?

Is it necessary to instruct the younger generation on these? Potentate R. A. Daniell and Col. W. R. Dunlap, who kept watchful eyes on the Shrine offspring, report in the negative. "Fatso" from The Sun-Tele comic page was there.

NOISY AND ORDERLY

There was lots of noise and enthusiasm, but at the same time order in the hundreds that gathered outside the big tent. In fact, the closest condition to a nice riot was an argument between two potential Shriners over which could consume more lemonade. However, even they would pass the entrance tests to the "Just Kids Safety First Gang." These Pittsburgh youngsters know all about "Just Kids" in The Sun-Tele comics.

HE LIKED IT!

Which youngster had the best time? Leo Tyler, who was escorted by his mother, yells a loud "I did" and challeng his pals to disprove that stirring statement. Leo feels a circus clown should be our next President and if they'd let him he'd vote accordingly. A lion might easily be Leo's vice president.

SHELTON FREED OF CHARGES

Peace again reigns in the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street. It was learned today that all charges against the pastor, the Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, had been dropped, which was regarded as a complete vindication of the minister who has served the downtown church for the past 18 years.

Dr. Shelton was charged with being a "czar" and with disregarding the wishes of the official board and membership of the church in administration of congregational affairs. The trouble grew out of the resignation last fall of the Rev. C. S. Poling, who had come to the church a few months previously as co-pastor. Poling charged that his position as co-pastor was being minimized and that he was not being given proper recognition. Following his resignation, a petition signed by 140 of the 1,250 members of the church, was presented to Pittsburgh Presbytery, asking a probe of Dr. Shelton's stewardship.

The matter was referred by the Presbytery to the executive commission of that body, and a hearing was held today, when, it was learned on good authority, the "rebel" forces capitulated and withdrew their charges.

The local forecast is: Fair and continued cool; probably frost tonight. Tuesday, fair and warmer. Lowest temperature tonight, between 35 and 40 degrees.

RACE FOR PRESIDENT CHEAP

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—A battalion of presidential candidates, parading through the witness stand at the Senate's presidential campaign funds inquiry, revealed today that most of their campaigns were being conducted on financial "shoestrings."

The inquiry opened with the calling of candidates who hope to step from the Senate into the White House.

Senator Charles Curtis (Rep.), of Kansas, reported the highest expenditures among the eight candidates heard. His expense to date totaled $11,468.67. Of the other candidates testifying Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, spent $6; Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, nothing; Senator George (Dem.), of Georgia, $75; Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, $1,075; Senator Goff (Rep.), of West Virginia, $60; ex-Senator Hitchcock (Dem.), of Nebraska, $1,744.55, and Representative Hull (Dem.), of Tennessee, less than $1,000.

Senator Steiwer (Rep.) of Oregon, chairman, first announced the committee would investigate all presidential campaign expenditures, and that the inquiry would be impartial

NORRIS SPENDS $6

Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, the insurgent candidate for the Republican nomination, was the first witness. He explained how he had spent $6 on his campaign to date. The payment was made to a Nebraska editor who published an advertisement in Norris' behalf.

"I wasn't responsible for it, but I sent him a check for $6," Norris explained.

"I haven't been a candidate in any sense of the word," said Norris. "I haven't wanted to be and haven't paid any attention to it whatever."

Norris said his name was put on the ballot in Nebraska and Wisconsin against his wishes.

"Of course, I could have stopped it by taking some definite action," he added, with a smile.

NO PROMISES MADE

"Has anybody made any promises in your behalf?"

"I don't believe any one would make any promises on the strength of my being nominated," Norris replied.

WOMEN TRAMPLED BY MOB RUSHING LINDY

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., May 7.—(AP.)—America has had many heroes since Col. Charles A. Lindbergh came back from his epochal flight to Paris last summer but the sight of the silver-winged plane is still enough of a magnet to send 2,000 people stampeding to surround it.

Landing on the field here last night after a hop over to Mitchel Field, he narrowly averted a tragedy as 2,000 people swarmed out onto the field, in imminent danger from the whirling blades of his plane's propeller.

Motorcycle police charged the crowd with screaming sirens and special guards attempted to ring off a clear space for him to land, but their efforts were not enough to stop the rush. Two women were knocked down, receiving cuts and bruises which required medical attention.

Lindbergh saw the human avalanche coming toward him and swerved his ship after a run of only a few feet, almost causing it to tip over. Using his wheel brakes as much as he dared he turned his plane completely around and shut off the motor without the customary idling while it cooled off.

He and his passengers were imprisoned in the plane's cabin as the mob milled around. Finally an automobile was forced through, and ducking the hands of those who sought to touch him he jumped into the car. Policemen stood on the running board, pushing away persons who sought to climb on, as motorcycle police cleared a lane to the road to New York.

JAP GUNS TRAIN ON CHINA

PEKIN, May 7.—(AP.)—Japanese warships were distributed throughout Chinese waters and additional troops were on their way to reinforce embattled comrades in Tsinan today as the Chinese observed "Humiliation Day."

The thirteenth anniversary of Japan's ultimatum of 21 demands took on a more somber and threatening aspect than ever before. Annually the day has been the occasion of anti-Japanese demonstrations. Massacre and fighting in Tsinan today had brought about what was considered the gravest Sino-Japanese crisis since the 1915 demands. It was feared that in Nationalist territory, at least, race hatred might flare and be the spark to set the train of powder off.

Shanghai advices told of arrangements for an extensive boycott of Japanese goods and resignation of Chinese employed by Japanese.

WOMEN TAKEN ON SHIPS

All Japanese women were taken on board ships at Ichang, on the Yangtze River, in the Province of Hupeh. At Nanking, the scene of the violent disorder of March last, the women were concentrated at the waterfront in readiness for embarkation, if this was thought advisable. Similar preparations were made at Chinkiang, a little below Nanking, and at Kiukiang, in Kiangsi Province.

To reinforce the Yangtze River patrol an additional destroyer division was ordered to Shanghai. While the Japanese garrison at Tsinan has been reinforced to a total of more than 4,000 men, an additional 2,700 troops were steaming from Manchuria to Tsingtao, where they will land with Tsinan as their destination.

FOREIGNERS SAFE

Assurances of the safety of American, British and German communities at Tsinan, limited the issue to Japan and Nationalist China. The rifles at Tsinan have been silent since Friday and Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, Nationalist commander-in-chief, is discredited and the unity of his command broken.

The revolutionary drive toward Pekin has halted, perhaps for months, perhaps permanently. In the meantime, the position of the northern army grows stronger.

REBELS MARCH ON RUMANIA CAPITAL

ALBA JULIA, Rumania, May 7.—(AP.)—Peasants were marching on Bucharest today to demand a change of government. After a Sunday meeting of 200,000 peasants and laborers had sworn to do everything possible to remove the present government and had broken up in confusion, the crowd lingered for two hours while several leaders made fiery speeches. Then two long columns started a five-day hike for Bucharest.

Ten fighting planes flew over Alba Julia surveying the ranks of the peasants as they trudged toward the capital.

Julio Maniu and I. Michalaki, peasant leaders, intended to reach the capital ahead of the peasants by traveling by railroad. They carried the demand of the assembly that the government headed by Vintila Bratianu resign and intended to present it to the regency.

The Associated Press correspondent who rode from Klausenburg (Cluj) toward Bucharest met many peasants moving toward the capital with banners which were unfurled. Others were sitting around camp fires by the road side.

TAKE OATH TO FIGHT

The peasants, meeting in Alba Julia, with raised hands, took this oath:

"We swear to the great and good God to fight a righteous fight against the government which is a plague to the country and which was nominated by a decree wrung from King Ferdinand on his death bed. We swear that a new Rumania shall be created which shall stand for freedom and justice to all of Rumania's brave sons."

To frustrate any attempt at open revolution the government deployed 10,000 trops at strategic points outside the city with machine guns and airplanes. No attempt was made, however, to molest the peasants.

Clark Says He'll Sue Dealers

"Suit will be filed on specific evidence of sale," announced Director James M. Clark today, as he awaited police reports relative to the observance of his ban on Sunday auto sales.

The auto dealers who kept open were awaiting the next move of the director to see if arrests are made.

J. R. Pierpont, president of the Pittsburgh Auto Dealers' Association and head of the Pierpont Motor Company, said the matter had not been formally considered by the dealers' association because the closing order had not been served until late Saturday. He was informed that the dealers generally paid no attention to the order.

W. N. Owings, secretary of the association, characterized the order an outrage and cited instances on the Hill where all kinds of stores are open on Sunday. He pointed out that gasoline stations were not included in the order.

DRYS LACK ZEAL, PASTOR'SAYS

"Gov. Al Smith is running for President as an avowed wet. He is winning on that issue and the church votes are helping him," the Rev. S. W. Bell, pastor of the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, said last night in his sermon on "Are Church People Killing Prohibition?"

Four years ago it was considered a terrible thing that Gov. Smith, a wet, should run for the Democratic nomination for President," he said. Dr. Bell declared that a subtle change is taking place whereby the church people are relaxing their prohibition zeal.

"We are not scaring out candidates as much as we used to do," the minister said. "The remedy is to return to teaching temperance, teaching that alcohol is a hangover from ancient barbarism and that drinking is practiced by the uncivilized," he asserted.

TRAPAGENT AND SEIZE 100,000 TICKETS

The inner workings of several large lotteries and baseball pools said to handle more than $300,000 each week in Western Pennsylvania alone, were entered yesterday by city detectives, who arrested an alleged head of the business and confiscated more than 100,000 lottery and pool tickets calling for $500,000 prize money.

Edwin R. Richardson, 21, of 613 Zulema street, alleged operator of the lotteries, is being held pending a hearing on a suspicious person charge.

Richardson was arrested when he accepted an invitation to hire Detective P. E. Moran as a subagent. Moran and Detective Peter Connors, went to Richardson's house, where tickets were found. Tickets also were found in the man's automobile, detectives say.

The arrest of Richardson led to a raid on the home of Joseph Deyo, of 265 Gross street, an alleged partner, where more tickets were found. Deyo, not at home at the time, has not been arrested. Detectives say that the tickets, calling for more than $500,000 prize money, were to have been distributed this week in all parts of Armstrong and Allegheny counties, and al o in other parts of the United States.

DIRIGIBLE ARRIVES AT KING'S BAY

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, May 7.—(AP.)—The dirigible Italia was safe at her base today awaiting favorable weather as final preparations were made for a series of trips over unexplored wastes of the Arctic and to the North Pole itself.

Despite extremely unfavorable weather conditions, General Umberto Nobile brought the airship from Vadsoe, Norway, some 700 miles across the Arctic Ocean to Kings Bay in 16¾ hours and made her fast to the mooring mast of the base ship Citta Di Mialano. A high wind was blowing and the dirigible was forced to stay anchored to the ship for many hours since it was impossible to put her in the hangar used by the Norge when General Nobile flew from here over the North Pole in 1926.

A heavy snowfall and contrary winds were encountered throughout Saturday night on the flight here. The Italia, however, was in constant wireless communication with the base ship and the Geofysiske Institute at Tromsoe, which supplied detailed data on the weather.

The ship was sighted near South Sydkap in Southern Spitzbergen yesterday morning. It kept outside the coast line because of heavy fogs.

General Nobile, after making Green Harbor at noon, was forced to maneuver the craft for an hour before he could bring her to the base ship mooring mast.

Lives in New York City.

FRIEDA HEMPEL

I believe that, like in all large cities in the United States, the public-spirited and successful men of affairs have done much to establish music in Pittsburgh, and your citizens have responded with the usual American zeal. Mr. Carnegie made many things possible for your city when he built the beautiful hall where concerts could be given under ideal conditions. Pittsburgh was also one of the first cities of the country (after Boston, New York and Chicago became centers for symphonic music) to organize a symphony orchestra, and it was also one of the first cities of the country to invite two great grand opera companies to give seasons of opera.

Like all the eminent musicians of my acquaintance who hold Pittsburgh audiences in the highest regard, I consider your city one of the leading centers of the country in the appreciation of art, for where there is no great industry art cannot thrive.

Cracks Up To Save Crowd

Lieut. Loran C. Faurot of the Army Reserve Flying Corps smashed up his airplane yesterday to avoid striking women and children who walked into his path while he was landing at Rodgers Field, Aspinwall. He was uninjured although his machine was wrecked.

Lieut. Faurot landed his machine in a field near the Pittsburgh Field Club and the crowd of spectators who had witnessed his heroic act, began stripping the machine before guards could be summoned. The aviator had shut off his motor and was gliding down to the field when he noticed the people in his path. He attempted to take to the air again, throwing on all the power and swerving away from the field.

Man Held As Wife Is Shot

Shot twice in the left breast, Mrs. Jennie Africh, 42, hotel keeper of 109 Ninth street, Braddock, is in a serious condition in Braddock Hospital and her husband John, 50, is held in the borough police station.

Africh, police said, had been estranged from his wife since he left home, three years ago, taking $12,000, their life's savings. He returned penniless three months later.

Entering the hotel, owned by the couple and operated by Mrs. Africh, police say, Africh waited until his wife descended the stairs and shot her twice. The couple have seven children, ranging in age from 5 to 22.

John Peretick, 58, bartender in the hotel, also was arrested and held pending an investigation.

OFFICER FREE IN SHOOTING

Police Lieut. Belmont Pugh, of Wilkinsburg, who last Monday shot and fatally wounded Charles Beattie, 19, of 5116 Kincaide street, as the latter is alleged to have attempted to enter a building at Penn avenue and Church street, Wilkinsburg, was released on his own recognizance by Coroner W. J. McGregor today.

Pugh gave himself up after being notified of Beattie's death. Pugh is said to have visited Beattie in the West Penn Hospital and was much affected by the condition of the victim, suffering a breakdown later. The inquest will be held Friday.

AVOID "INFLUENCE" JURORS WARNED

"Perform your duties according to your oath, and if any officer of the court undertakes to step over the boundary line, notify the court," warned Judge Josiah Cohen this morning, addressing a new panel of 230 jurors and 100 members of the bar in Common Pleas Court.

While the court made no reference to testimony in Washington recently at the coal strike investigation regarding alleged jury-fixing in Allegheny county, the address was regarded as aimed at jury-tampering and political influence in reaching verdicts.

"Sometimes juross have sacrificed their oath to political expediency," said Judge Cohen. "No thinking man or woman will violate the sanctity of the oath. No juror has the right to refuse to review the evidence. Jurors should be considerate of each other's views. It doesn't make any difference whether they are Protestant, Catholic or Jew. I am told that this has been done. It is an outrage. The man or woman who says 'I am going to decide this case because of some political reason' is not fit to serve and is a traitor to his country. There should be no influence whatever, whether political or religious, in finding verdicts according to law and the evidence. If such conditions prevailed we would have fewer motions for new trials, less expense for the country and more justice."

BOY SCOUTS TO CHECK TRAFFIC

1,000 TO BE USED IN SERVICE

More than 575 Boy Scouts met in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium to receive instructions on how to make a 'traffic count,' when 1,000 scouts on May 24 will check traffic at principal intersections. Reports at 15-minute intervals will be made throughout the day. Practice sessions will be held every Saturday morning until May 24. Donald McNeil, assistant to Burton W. Marsh, city traffic engineer, instructed scouts.

Trial Shift Refused Herron

NEW PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—Judge Eli E. Lindsay today overruled a motion for change in venue for William D. Herron, 41, confessed slayer of his sister-in-law, Viola May, 23.

The court held there was nothing to prevent Herron from obtaining a fair trial in Tuscarawas county, despite the notoriety given the case.

Selection of a jury was begun at once from a special panel of 75, including 15 women, to try Herron on a first degree murder charge. He had entered a plea of "not guilty" a month ago. It is likely a day will be consumed in choosing a jury.

The May woman's body was recovered from the Tuscarawas River March 26. Herron confessed, authorities say, that he threw the body into the stream after he had "choked her too hard" the night of February 7.

Yeggs Haul Safe Away; Get $2,000

Safecrackers operated in Wilkinsburg and Oakland early today and gained about $2,000.

At Fishel's confectionery store, North Craig and Bayard streets, they forced a lock and carted a 500-pound safe through the front door. Employes estimated the safe contained $1,000.

The loot from the Charles W. Walmer hardware store, 716 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, was $50 in cash and $500 in checks. The burglars knoocked off the combination lock.

MANCHESTER BRIDGE "BRIGHTENED"

A coat of aluminum paint that will make it an outstanding piece of architecture in the downtown district is being applied to the Manchester bridge. Although the job has only been started, the effect its completion will have can easily be seen. Until its sheen is dimmed by Pittsburgh's smoke, the bridge whose former drab color made it blend into its background will be visible for miles.

Ex-City Official Shot

MINNEAPOLIS, May 7.—(AP.)—Wardell Hertig, 59, former president of the city council and a lawyer for 30 years, was found shot dead in his room at the Minneapolis Athletic Club last night.

The body was on the bed, wrapped in a blanket. There were bloodstains on a window shade. A revolver from which two shots had been fired was found under some papers on the floor near the bed. One bullet had entered the ceiling.

These circumstances led to uncertainty among officers as to whether Hertig had killed himself or been shot by another. He had been in ill health for some time.

WOMAN TAKES POISON

Mrs. Hazel Ebbitt, 27, of 1018 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, is in the Columbia Hospital in a serious condition as a result of drinking poison in her home last night in an attempt to end her life, police say. She was removed to the hospital by Wilkinsburg police, who were called when the woman took sick.

'We Owe Walsh Something for Honesty'-Will

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 7.—Senator Walsh issued a statement that on account of its extereme novelty has not received the proper amount of publicity that it should. He resigned as follows: "There just don't seem to be any burning desire on the part of the people for my nomination. I feel sure they want Smith." We may not owe Mr. Walsh the presidency, but we certainly do owe him something for his eyesight, honesty and frankness. Jim Watson is still wearing smoke-colored glasses.

URGE MINE COMPROMISE

mittee, in its investigation of the strike, that the Federal Council of Churches intended to "whitewash" the operators, but the report hardly can be so construed.

"Bad Ethics"

In regard to the violation of the Jacksonville wage contract by the Pittsburgh Coal Company, the Bethlehem Mines Corporation of Charles M. Schwab, the Consolidation Coal Company of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and certain other companies, the report says:

"When a company accepts the profits flowing from an agreement and abrogates it as soon as it begins to mean loss it is practicing bad business ethics. The contention that the agreement was not legally binding is beside the point. That is a matter for the courts to determine."

"Economic ills," the report says at the outset, "do not constitute an excuse for the failure to consider the demands of social ethics."

The investigation was undertaken by the Federal Council at the request of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches, was conducted by the Department of Research and Education, and continued through several months.

The report condemns violence by the strikers and by the coal and iron police, and expresses strong disapproval of peace officers being on the payrolls of industrial corporations.

Commenting on the eviction of strikers' families from the company houses, it remarks that "domiciles should be independent of employment."

Court Action Scored

It finds that the courts have gone too far in some cases in the issuance of injunctions against the miners' union.

Apropos of the charges that constables and justices of the peace have abused their power in the interest of one side or the other in the struggle, it points out that there is abundant evidence that injustice has resulted from the system under which constables and justices derive compensation from fees imposed on persons whom they arrest and try.

The report upholds collective bargaining and the right of the miners to organize. It finds that unless the mines are unionized and there is agreement on a basic scale "a sweat-shop competition in wage rates results." It urges public support for the free extension of unionism.

Deplore "Gag" Rule

The report deplores the denial of free speech to the union organizers in the non-union fields of West Virginia and the raising of an artificial barrier to the growth of the United Mine Workers.

The chief emphasis of the report is on the unsatisfactory economic situation in the industry as a whole, which it declares must be taken into account if the human factors are to be understood.

The conclusions are prefaced with the statement:

"Here is a seriously overdeveloped industry, with more mines and more labor than the demand justifies, divided into sharply competitive fields, and subject to influences that tend to limit its market. Until the fundamental ills of the industry, treated as a whole, are grappled with successfully either by the industry itself or by the government, or both, preoccupation with the humanitarian phases of the problem can accomplish little of a constructive nature.

"At the same time the economic ills of the industry do not constitute an excuse for the failure to consider the demands of social ethics."

The use of violence is condemned in these words:

"However great the provocation, the beating up of men who have taken the positions of those on strike is a barbarous practice. The fact that these brutal demonstrations may be quite unauthorized by the responsible officials of the union is only a partial defense. The conduct of a strike imposes a heavy responsibility in the matter of discipline."

Stronger language is used in condemning police violence:

"In employing with legal sanction the coal and iron police the coal companies incur a solemn obligation not to divert the processes of orderly government to private ends. It is almost impossible to preserve justice in a time of industrial crisis when officers of the peace are carried on the payrolls of industrial corporations. This practice does not become salutary by virtue of legality or long precedent."

Concerning the evictions of mine workers' families from company houses, which have supplied the chief sensational interest of the strike the report says:

"The eviction of the families of striking miners from company houses is an important factor in the controversy because it indicates a wholly-unsound social situation. Given the institution of the company house and the company town, it is to be expected that in time of strike the corporation will seek by legal process to secure possession of the houses for occupancy by new employes. The houses are virtually a part of the operating equipment—a plant facility—and only employes are entitled to occupy them.

Social vs. Industrial

"The moral difficulty arises out of the fact that the merging of the landlord and employer functions gives less freedom to the worker than considerations of public policy require. If participation in a strike means automatic eviction for a worker's family it may be fairly contended that the equity of the situation is grievously impaired. It is true that this situation is of long standing and that it arose naturally out of frontier conditions. There may be no easy remedy for

PITT DEAN SEES COAL REVIVAL

CINCINNATI, O., May 7.—(AP.)—Coal is coming back to its former position of importance in American industry, Dean E. A. Holbrook, school of engineering and mines, University of Pittsburgh, told the Coal Mining Congress of the American Mining Congress here today.

"For some years," he said, "the coal industry was menaced by oil competition, but we have reached the height of that competition and no vast new supplies of oil are in prospect. Coal is coming back and the years to come should be brighter for the coal industry than those just passed."

The convention will continue until Friday night.

it but the sound principle is that domicile should be independent of employment.

"The courts," the report continues, "have upheld the operators in the eviction cases, since the leases signed by the mine workers contained a clause requiring that the houses be vacated within a few days after the termination of employment. Nevertheless, it remains an open question whether such a lease represents the real equities of the situation.

"Not Equitable"

"It is obviously of the very nature of a strike that the worker is not intentionally 'terminating employment', but is suspending work as a means of changing the conditions of employment.

"If, therefore, the 'right to strike' means anything in terms of public policy it would seem to follow that to enforce the surrender of a domicile when a strike takes place, however legal such action may be, falls short of being equitable to the extent that the strike may be justifiable.

"Not only so, but it can scarcely be contended that a worker has freedom to bargain for his employment when the very terms of the bargain involve shelter for his family. The U. S. Coal Commission said that these house leases are ill-advised, obnoxious and inconsistent with the spirit of free local communities.

"On the other hand," the report says further, "it is patent that in the case of any strike that is economically or ethically unjustified, the denial to the owners of recourse to the courts to secure possession of their houses would inflict injustice upon them. The whole matter illustrates the difficulty of doing justice in a situation where the social arrangements are fundamentally inequitable."

Injunctions Hit

The report declares that the use of injunctions in labor disputes has been carried to absurd lengths.

It says: "When a corporation seeks and a court grants an injunction restraining a union not only from acts which are illegal and wrong in themselves, but from ordinary routine activities, such as the peaceful recruiting of members or the disbursing of relief funds in time of strike, the social effects are bound to be injurious.

"The same is true when the injunction is used to protect an individual contract that is contrary to the worker's legitimate interest. The bitterness and the sense of oppression and injustice which these practices entail not only foster industrial strife, but furnish a powerful incentive to the violation of court orders."

Under the caption, "Faulty Administration of Law," the report points out:

"Grievous danger" to orderly government is inherent in the system whereby justice of the peace and constables elected by the people and sworn to administer the law impartially derive their compensation from fees levied upon persons whom they themselves have brought under the discipline of the law. There is abundant evidence in this case, coming from both sides, that grievous miscarriages of justice have resulted from this system, which is itself an invitation to corruption. The United States Supreme Court in the celebrated Tumey case has condemned as a denial of due process of law the imposition of penalties by officers who have a financial interest in the case in question."

Regarding the right to organize, the report says:

"It is now well recognized that labor unionism rests upon valid claims to security of status and that contractual relations between employers and unions offer definite possibilities for improved industrial relations and for increased stability.

"These results, it is true, are not always realized. Any system of human relations may be vitiated by a lack of good will or of practical wisdom. But failures in spirit or performance do not indict the principle of collective bargaining, and the banishment of contractual relations from an industry in which it has become an established institution must be regarded as a step backward.

O. K. Union Bargaining

"The employes should have the right to organize and bargain collectively in every coal district, and the employers should be brought to a realization of the need of conceding that right as a means of eliminating cut-throat competition.

"While it is rightly contended that over-development is an important cause of the pressure on labor standards, even more fundamental than this is the inherent inequality and unfairness of the competition between the union fields, which are tied to a fixed and rigid wage, and the non-union fields, which are free to undercut standards and to take the market.

"The history of the industry shows that unless there is agreement on a basic scale a sweatshop competition in wage rates results. There are thousands of competing units, and wages form some 70 per cent of the total cost of mining coal. Without some means of fixing a standard the individual employers find themselves forced to cut the rates."

Elaborating this point, the report says:

"Experience shows that unless the great majority of the mining companies are parties to the arrangement, maintenance of the standard soon becomes impossible.

"If, for example, the union should adopt a sliding scale of wages based on the variation in prices the nonunion competition in all probability would force down the price and with it the wage.

If the union fields adopt the alternative of a fixed scale the resulting competition is most unequal; the non-union operator puts his wage rate just low enough to capture the business.

"Because of these conditions it is both natural and proper that the union should seek to expand its membership to cover as much of the field as is necessary to maintain the wage. The difficulty of maintaining the standard becomes progressively more serious as more of the field goes non-union, and while the position of the non-union mines is comfortable so long as they are competing with a union adversary, it may become exceedingly unpleasant if they have to compete with other non-union mines.

Chaos Possible

"If, for example, the United Mine Workers were to be destroyed, it appears altogether likely that an intolerable competition would ensue, forcing wages to such low levels that the workers of the Southern fields would suffer quite as much as those in other fields."

The position of the United Mine Workers is described as "very difficult" since their strategy has been "directed toward holding the Jacksonville wage scale for the union fields as a whole."

"They contend strongly," the story continues, "that if they accept a reduction in the interest of the operators they have no assurance against recurring reductions and a progressive lowering of their standard of living because of the continuing competition of the non-union fields. The economic facts of the situation seem to support them in this contention.

"On the other hand, insistence upon the Jacksonville scale, if we may judge on the basis of the financial data available, puts the operators in the Pennsylvania and Ohio fields in an impossible position in view of the active competition of the southern fields."

Summarizing this situation, the report says:

"Thus it unfortunately appears that the United Mine Workers must choose between a continued effort to maintain the nominal wage level and an effort to rehabilitate their organization in the Pennsylvania and Ohio fields by seeking a working agreement which will be in line with the economic facts of the situation.

"Co-Operation Needed"

"They must decide whether their greatest stake is in the maintenance of the existing union wage scale or in the immediate recovery of the Pennsylvania and Ohio fields. At the same time, the miners cannot be expected to accept even a temporary reduction in the scale of wages unless the operators are willing to resume collective bargaining, and to give some assurance of steadier working time and increased annual earnings.

"What the union fields need most of all is a whole-hearted co-operation between operators and mine workers that will discount temporary financial sacrifices, in the interest of the permanent improvement of the industry, the re-establishment of orderly industrial relations and the ultimate elimination, through the extension of collective agreements, of the destructive conflict between the northern and southern fields."

Urging the need for public support in the free extension of unionism, the report states:

"It cannot be too strongly emphasized, however, that if the United Mine Workers are willing to face the economic situation in the union fields and to seek a workable agreement that will make possible real co-operation in building up the industry, then it is indisputable that they should have public support in doing what the union operators have always urged them to do—namely, organizing the non-union fields. Membership in a labor union is not a thing to be either forced or restrained; there should be a fair field for organization to a union which takes account of the welfare of the industry and the service of the public in shaping its policy."

Hit Curb on Union

After citing evidence of repressive measures taken against the union, the report says:

"This denial of freedom of speech and civil liberty in the nonunion coal fields would be serious enough if its effects were only local. But, as a matter of fact, by interposing an artificial barrier to the growth of the miners' union it unsettled the coal industry of the entire country, and made collective bargaining extremely difficult."

Suggesting that operators make public financial data, the report has this to say:

"The operators will gain in public confidence and respect by making the financial data involved a matter of record. For business-like bargaining and co-operative action to exist full information should be available on costs, prices and profits. It can hardly be expected that either party will give full co-operation in a business relation in which the necessary facts affecting the distribution of the earnings of the industry are withheld."

Regarding the obligation to observe agreements, the report says:

"Without attempting to define precisely the alternatives that were open to the companies which broke their agreement, it is clear that those who continued to operate under it or to close their mines are in a much stronger ethical position. There may be countervailing considerations, such as the contention that too great public pressure was brought to bear upon the operators to sign an agreement in which they did not believe, and that the alternative of closing the mines meant unemployment and suffering.

"But when a company accepts the profits flowing from an agreement and abrogates it as soon as it begins to mean less it is practising bad business ethics.

Hold Pact Binding

"Certainly, the contention that the agreement was not legally binding is beside the point. That is a matter for the courts to determine. The point is that the Jacksonville Agreement had the same significance that wage contracts have admittedly had in the coal industry for 30 years. It was signed after much deliberation. Whatever it meant when the operators were deliberating over it and when they signed it, it meant when they abrogated it.

"It is the moral aspect of the matter, not the legal, that we would emphasize.

"The violation of a working contract by labor is always roundly scored by employers. Those who offer justification for abrogating the Jacksonville Agreement are confronted with the example of operators, who, faced by the same situation, considered themselves bound by their agreement either to operate under it or to suspend mining operations pending the expiration of the agreement. And, while some companies were able to operate at a profit under the Jacksonville Agreement, others appear to have operated at a loss rather than violate the agreement they had signed.

"Nevertheless," the comment on this subject concludes, "preoccupation with a repudiated agreement will not solve the present problem. What has happened furnishes a striking example of the inter-relationship of economics and ethics. Unless a sound basis exists for carrying on the life-sustaining processes the higher values of human relationships have little chance of realization."

"Get Together"

Under the head of "constructive action to prevent a recurrence of industrial war," the report recommends:

"(1) Abandonment by both operators and mine workers of belligerent and oppressive tactics.

"(2) Reconsideration by the former union operators of their stand on the principle of collective bargaining which they have abandoned.

"(3) A frank presentation by the operators of the financial data upon which they base their contention that the union scale is prohibitive!

"(4) Acceptance by the mine workers of a larger measure of responsibility for the prosperity of the industry, in the light of the existing economic situation. Such a sharing of responsibility should be recognized in collective agreements. The union should consider earnestly whether the continuance of its fight for the Jacksonville scale, which undoubtedly serves as a rallying point for its membership amid demoralizing forces, is of more ultimate value than a resumption of relations with the operators in the Northern fields on a wage basis that will permit the profitable mining of coal. This is a decision which the union must make for itself.

"(5) If the parties to this controversy can find a basis for a resumption of contractual relations, it will be for the public to see that the present methods of preventing unionization in the Southern fields shall end. Indeed, considerations of public policy alone should lead to the abolition of these practices."

It is explained::

"The hoped-for outcome of the co-operative procedure here outlined would be the gradual elimination of surplus mines and mine workers by the operation of economic law. If through collective bargaining on a constructive basis a standard wage is established in all fields, then the mines which cannot pay such a wage will tend to be forced out of the market, instead of, as at present, being allowed to continue in operation through a ruthlessly-competitive wage scale."

In addition to its recommendations the report urges careful study of existing proposals for consolidations and co-operative marketing associations, and suggests the formation of a board, appointed by the President, comparable to the Federal Oil Conservation Board.

FOOT specialists have just perfected a marvelous new vanishing cream that is bringing instant, lasting relief to thousands suffering with sore, aching, burning feet—corns, bunions and callouses.

This remarkable cream contains those two world-old unguents—frankincense and myrrh—used by the ancients for centuries to heal away foot burns and aches caused by the hot sands of the desert.

Medicated baths, plasters and powders fail to bring lasting relief because they do not reach the real cause of sore, burning feet. But Coolene, as this pain-relieving cream is called, is quickly absorbed by the feet and gets right down to the irritated nerves and tissues—quickly soothes and cools them—relieves congestion in the tiny veins—and, almost like magic, your sore, aching, burning feet feel refreshed, easy, and walking becomes a joy.

When Skinny Men Grow Manly

Five or 10 Pounds of Flesh on Their Bones Make a Lot of Difference.

Out in the country they used to say "Just as thin as a fence rail" and after Jim had somehow managed to grow more shapely and add more weight they used to say,

"Jim's a real good looking fellow since he took on flesh."

And that's the way it goes all over the world; the skinny, gaunt man can never be attractive or look manly until he puts more flesh on his scantily covered bones.

Many thin men have gained in weight and at the same time in vigor and attractiveness—no thin man can do it unless he tries.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at May's Drug Stores, or any drug store in America.

1,000-MI. RIVER PAGEANT IN OCTOBER

CINCINNATI, O., May 7.—(AP.)—The 1,000-mile river pageant celebrating the completion of the $100,000,000 dam project assuring all-year navigation between Pittsburgh and Cairo on the Ohio River, will be held in October instead of next year.

The change in the time for the celebration was made at a meeting of the executive committee of the Ohio River Improvement Association and plans for the pageant will be completed at the association's annual convention at Pittsburgh in June.

Tentative acceptance has been received from President Coolidge to take part in the celebration, Oscar Barrett, president of the improvement association, said.

Completion this year of 50 dams in the Ohio River improvement program will enable maintenance of a nine-foot stage throughout the year.

MAY 26 LIKELY CLOSING DATE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—With many major measures hanging fire, the Senate today faced a tremendous legislative jam at the close of the present session.

May 19 has been fixed for the grand windup, but it appeared certain that a final hectic week will be added, bringing adjournment to May 26 at the earliest.

The coming week—one-third of the remaining session, will be given over to the tax bill. Administration forces are lined up to hold tax reduction to around the $203,000,000 figure, satisfactory to President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. Democrats are fighting for a $300,000,000 to $325,000,000 tax reduction bill.

With the tax bill out of the way, the Boulder Dam bill battle will be resumed in a terrific debate to bring it to a final vote. Led by Senator Ashurst (Rep.), of Arizona, the forces opposing the bill are prepared to filibuster to the last ditch. Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, championing the bill, will use every bit of strategy possible to get Boulder Dam to a vote.

Looming behind the Boulder Dam measure is the all important Mississippi River flood control bill, now back from conference.

Firewater Gets Chief; Given Free Ticket

East End firewater proved too potent for Chief White Wing, an Indian, who makes "whoopee" with the Sells-Floto Circus, so the chief, arrested last night for drunkenness, appeared in Frankstown avenue police court today, in full regalia.

"Inasmuch," pronounced Magistrate William J. Soost, "as you have the honor to be the first Indian ever arraigned before me, and, further, inasmuch as I have a warm spot in my heart for good old Indians, you are, Chief White Wing, discharged. Good day!"

MUSIC

ELIAS BREESKIN ENSEMBLE

Y. M. & W. H. A.

PROGRAM

Quartet in A Minor................Kreisler
  Allegro Moderato
  Scherzo
  Andante
  Allegro
Quartette Quasi Fantasia (MSS)..Breeskin
Octette for Strings............Mendelssohn
  Allegro
  Andante
  Presto
  Allegro Molto

The Chamber Music Society of the Y. M. and W. H. A. closed its series last night with a concert by the Elias Breeskin Ensemble. The audience was not so large as on both previous occasions, but was assuredly awake to the fact that it was listening to a very good entertainment and applauded accordingly.

The program was never tiresome. Two quartets and an octet for strings proved Elias Breeskin once again a very capable leader. Though his playing often overstepped the tone of excellent ensemble playing, it did, however, assert a vigorous rhythm and sweep that kept the other instruments from lagging.

Intonation was unusually true for so new a quartet; whatever uncouthness crept into the quality of tone was more than counterbalanced by the spirit of the playing.

Kreisler's quartet is very enjoyable music after several hearings. There are reminiscences of Tschaikowsky, strivings for latter-day dissonances also, but Kreisler confesses in every page that he speaks the Viennese dialect.

The scherzo has wonderfully smart tricks that only a virtuoso can invent, and the finale is a syncopated parody on a folk dance. Breeskin offered his fantasy for string quartet. It is richer in melody than in counterpoint, suggests good entre-acte music at the outset, and then develops into liveliest variations.

The arrangement of strings was doubled for the octet, and rejuvenated Mendelssohn in most unexpected manner.

Rigid Tests Child's Food Must Meet

DR COPELAND

A BABY'S life is filled with danger. No matter how well and strong the infant, there are many troubles which must be overcome. When the baby grows old enough to wean or when for any reason the mother must submit her child to bottle feeding, there are many dangers to guard against.

The common substitute for mother's milk is cow's milk. But cow's milk differs materially from mother's milk, therefore, it must be "modified." That is, additions must be made to give it more nearly the qualities of human milk.

The protein content is greater than that of mother's milk. You can see why this is: The baby calf grows more rapidly than the human baby and on this account it must have the building materials which the proteins supply.

Another difference lies in the quantity of sugar. Mother's milk contains 60 per cent more sugar than cow's milk.

These differences are liable to cause serious trouble if clear cow's milk is given the baby. That is why such milk must be modified to adapt it to the baby's requirements.

The unfamiliar quantities of protein would cause the cow's milk to coagulate into hard curds in the stomach. To overcome this, gruels are added to the milk. They act to break up the mass.

Milk sugar must be added to supply the deficiency of sugar, and water is poured in to establish the proper proportions.

The general principles involved in modifying cow's milk are indicated by this formula:

To 16 ounces of milk are added 12 ounces of barley water, or some other gruel, a teaspoonful of sugar and a pinch of salt. Under certain conditions, lime water is another essential addition.

I have told you many times with what care the utensils must be cleansed and how necessary cleanliness is at every stage of the food preparation if the safety of the child is to be guaranteed. In this connection when I use the world "cleanliness," I mean the same cleanliness demanded by the surgeon in preparation for an operation. It is a degree of cleanliness which means freedom from germ infection. To this end everything used in the process must be thoroughly boiled.

When the milk is modified and ready for the baby, the supply must be kept in such a way as to prevent the growth of the germs of fermentation. Therefore, the prepared milk must be kept cold. At no time must it be permitted to rise above 40 degrees temperature. If it does, harm may result.

Bear in mind that the formula I have given is intended merely to give you an idea of how modification of milk is accomplished. The age and condition of your baby will determine the exact proportions of the ingredients. You will talk with your doctor about this.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, May 8

THE planets exert a most auspicious rule on this day, yet the best of the propitious auguries may be offset if the proclivity to rash moves, contention and turbulence be indulged. With these subdued there should be excellent conditions for growth, expanion and fulfilled ambitions in many directions, especially favored being entirely new undertakings.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of excellent opportunity and progress if they will curb the tendency to strife, turmoil and rash deeds. New ventures and affiliations with government or large corporations are under propitious rule.

A child born on this day will be endowed with many qualifications for success and high position, but it must have calmness, deliberation and self-government inculcated lest strife and turbulence bring self-undoing.

Astrology teaches that the starry heavens are myriads of magnets, each sending out currents and are constantly changing as they move. —NYLAND.

THERE was a time when editors used to scratch their heads and try to think up special features that would interest women.

That was in the day when if you mentioned to a woman something important that had happened somewhere in the world she would give you a blank look, and declare that she never read a newspaper!

Women who did look at the papers did so only to see what the day's bargains were, glance at beauty hints, or skim through the local society gossip!

But how different it is today. Women are up to the minute in all the news of the day. They enjoy everything, from the front page headlines to market reports, and even the sporting page.

Using one's brain puts a sparkle in the eye.

It's good to see women reading the paper thoroughly and having an opinion on current events.

The daily paper is a great thing! It brings you in touch with the world.

If you wish to know anything about another city you intend to visit or make your home, don't waste time asking people who have been there about it. Get its daily papers for a week or so and you will learn all you wish. The daily paper is the voice of the city.

I have been going around the world, via newspaper! My friend at the stand where they sell papers from all parts of the world gave me the idea. You should try that some time. It's great fun to "see" other places through their daily papers!

Madge and Lillian Puzzling Over the "Certain Conditions" Imposed on Mary

LILLIAN and I, listening to Mary's footsteps flying up the stairs, sat silent and unmoving until we heard her door close. There had been other sounds in that rapid flight, those of sobs too long held back and now tearing from the girl's throat. But we knew better than to follow her with sympathy. What she needed most was to hide herself in her own room and give way to the tears she had fought so bravely. But though I knew that her conduct had justified Philip Veritzen in severity toward her, my heart was hot with anger against the great theatrical producer for the mental suffering which the girl evidently was undergoing because of his discipline. What were the "certain conditions" upon the fulfillment of which depended her restoration to her high place as the chosen dramatic protege of Philip Veritzen, whom he promised to make his most distinguished star?

As I put the query to myself I involuntarily looked at Lillian and found her gazing intently at me.

"There's one thing certain, neither Phil nor Mary will ever tell us," she said as if I had spoken my thought aloud. "But I don't believe they're so difficult of deduction. I'll bet we'll ravel out the tangled skein before very long."

"You mean you will," I said.

"Quoting your honorable mother-in-law, 'don't be an anointed idiot because you know how,'" she retorted. "But before we begin, suppose we spend a few seconds in the ancient and honorable pastime known as 'putting on the pan.' I'll give you three guesses as to the identity of the person I'd like to see ornamented with red-hot gridiron stripes."

"I don't need three," I returned, smiling at her ferocity. "One will be amply sufficient. I wouldn't mind basting Mr. Veritzen with oil, myself, as the gridiron turns."

"That poor child!" Lillian exclaimed. "He stretched her on the rack, all right. But what do you think of the colossal bluff he pulled on her?"

"You mean?" I said—

"That he had no idea of that masked dancer thing until Mary sprung it. I had my doubts before, but what she said shows that he didn't have an idea of what she meant until she told her story. But, oh! how he did turn it to his own advantage as soon as he did get hold of it. He's an opportunist, if there ever was one, is Phil."

I looked quickly at her, realizing that she was harboring the same theory which had been mulling around in my brain since Mary's story of her queer interview with Philip Veritzen.

"You think, then, that those conditions—" I began, but Lillian took the words from me in the ruthless way which is hers when she is absorbed in some problem. She has a favorite aphorism that hard work and good manners aren't a good team to hitch together, and she frequently illustrates it.

"I think," she said, "that Phil saw Mary's fright and remorse and took advantage of her state of mind to impose conditions upon her which she might not have accepted even to save her career if she had been less agitated. Yet, I don't know. She's rather a hard-boiled little egg, Mary. I fancy she'd subordinate almost any personal relation to her ambition."

She stopped and looked at me with bright, comprehending eyes.

"Look here," she said. "I'm pretty sure what those conditions are and so are you. But there's no use our naming them just yet. I'll make you a sporting proposition. We'll write our deductions down, put them in envelopes, seal them and exchange envelopes. Then when something develops which brings out the truth, we'll bring them out and see what kind of prophets we were. What do you say?"

"I say 'yes,'" I returned smiling at her whimsy, and so it was arranged.

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

Puzzled Freshman

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your wonderful advice in the Lovelorn. I am a young man in my early teens and also a freshman in high school. I have been going with a girl whom I love dearly, and she also says that she loves me. I have been keeping steady company with this girl for several months. We both do not go out with any other company, as we have promised each other not to. Do you think this all right? We see each other as often as four times each week. Do you think this too often? Her mother approves of me keeping company and late hours with her. Do you think that 12 or 1 o'clock is too late to stay after coming from a show, etc.? This girl is over 15 years of age. We have almost promised each other that when we finish school and still love each other as we do now, that we are to get married then. I do not see any harm in this, Miss Gale. We do not agree with you on the kissing and petting question, as we do not see how you would know whether a person loved you or not if they did not indulge in kissing, etc.

PUZZLED FRESHMAN.

You are both much too young to confine yourselves to each other's companionship. Four dates a week are too many for school boys and girls, and the hours you keep are far too late. I am very sorry you disagree with me about petting, but youth always objects to such advice, only to discover its mistake later.

Worried Blonde

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am 19 years old and a blonde. It has been about six months since I met a fellow. He asked me for a date the day we met, but somehow I did not care for him just then, so I told him that I did not care to make any dates with any fellow. Of course we see each other almost every day when going to work, and he has told me that he was going to get a car, but since that time he has not asked me for another date. The way he talks to me, I think that he would like to ask me for another date, but I think that he is afraid that I will not care to go out with him. So now, Miss Gale, do you think that he will ask me for another date, as I have found out now that I really do love him and would be very glad if he would ask me for another date, which I would be most willing to fill. WORRIED BLONDE.

You cannot, of course, know that you love this boy since you are barely acquainted with him. However, you might invite him to call.

Undecided

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been going with a boy about two months. He says he cares for me, but he has never taken me out, and when he makes a date to take me out he always comes too late. Do you think he really cares for me or not? Should I continue keeping company with him?

UNDECIDED.

Perhaps he doesn't have much money and can't afford to take you to places of amusement. If he comes to see you frequently he must like you.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

MAY MOONINGS

THIS is the dangerous season when a man's conscience goes on strike and his heart, pulse and vanity begin working overtime.

A man is never actually old, until he has lost his last desire for the food that makes him dyspeptic, the pleasures that make him poor, and the women who make a fool of him.

HELEN ROWLAND

After a man has silenced his conscience toward his wife a few times, it just lies down like little Fido, goes to sleep and never troubles him again.

If it were as difficult to get married as it is to get a pre-war drink, marriage certificates would become the craze of the hour. Since the Anti-Saloon League has made drinking so popular and fashionable, why not start an "Anti Marriage League" to give an impetus to matrimony?

The average man is like a clock; once you get him wound up and started in any direction, you can't STOP him until he either runs down or gets a violent jolt.

A solution of one part flattery to two parts sweet indifference makes an ideal thermos bottle in which to keep a man's love from growing cold.

At this insidious time of year, a man is almost afraid to PRETEND that he's in love—for fear he may convince himself.

Never take love lightly—nor a springtime lover seriously.

THE TRAGEDY OF MANY LIVES IS CONSTIPATION

Guard against it in time

This evil scourge ruins thousands of promising men and women. It saps vigor. It kills initiative. It wrecks health and happiness. Sleepless nights, dragging feet, headaches, pain-dulled eyes, follow in its wake. Frequently it leads to lasting and serious disease.

Yet there is safe, prompt relief. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. To surely prevent it. ALL-BRAN is 100% bran—100% effective. Doctors recommend it. Two tablespoonfuls daily — chronic cases, with every meal.

Don't you agree it is better to cure constipation with this healthful cereal than to try dangerous pills and drugs? Or uncertain part-bran products? Delicious with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle it into soups. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"THE COOLEST SPOT IN PITTSBURGH"

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

A GROUP of stage entertainers, including musical comedy stars, jazz band musicians, singers of popular songs and comedians, will appear before the microphone of Station WCAE at 11 o'clock tonight and present the Stanley Theater's jubilee week radio program. Among those to be heard will be Elsa Ersi, Hungarian musical comedy star; Nat Ayer, British composer, and members of Harry Kleber's Juvenile Orchestra.

In recognition of the Schubert centennial, the General Motors family party over WCAE and other Red Network stations at 9:30 o'clock, will be devoted to a program of the masterpieces of that great Austrian composer, who died 100 years ago. Though but 31 years of age at the time of his death, Schubert left more than 600 known songs, in addition to 17 operas, nine symphonies, 15 sonatas and creditable works in other branches of composition. The Schubert program will be presented by Nanette Guilford, Metropolitan Opera "baby" soprano, and Lewis James, tenor. Other WCAE chain features will be the A. and P. Gypsies and the Great Moments in History episode.

Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory" will be sung by a male quartet during the Riverside Hour broadcast through KDKA and other Blue Network stations at 9 o'clock. Other numbers by the quartet will be "Among My Souvenirs" and Nevin's "Mighty Lak' a Rose." The Riverside Trail Blazers, an instrumental group, will open the program with "Spirit of Progress," a march written by J. Oliver Riehl especially for this feature. "Raymond," by Thomas, follows. The program continues with "On the Mall," "Donkey and the Driver," and "Sing-Song-Sycamore Tree."

Compositions by Edward/Alexander MacDowell, one of America's foremost composers, will be played by Mme. Lolita Cambrera Gainsborg, pianist, and an orchestra under the direction of Cesare Sodero, during a program in observance of National Music Week, to be broadcast through stations KDKA at 9:30 o'clock.

"Yes, We Are Collegiate," the Spur Tie Beaus will sing as they open their program over WJAS and other Columbia chain stations at 9 o'clock. And they will endeavor to prove that they are by a half-hour program of snappy songs.

The Pioneers, over the same station at 9:30 o'clock, will offer Charles Wakefield Cadman's "The Garden of Mystery," a grand opera founded on Nathaniel Hawthorne's "Rappaccini's Daughter." A symphony orchestra and concert soloists will be featured. The event will mark the first radio performance of this score and only the second performance in history. Howard Barlow, who conducted the American National Orchestra at this other performance in Carnegie Hall, New York, in 1925, is to wield the baton for the air presentation.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgh's "400" Prominent in Social Events Held in Other Cities and Countries

THERE surely is nothing provincial about Pittsburgh society. One is always hearing of the participation of some of our "400" in social events of other cities and countries. At Palm Beach, at Watch Hill, at Southampton, in the Canadian society resorts, Pittsburgh society names always figure prominently in social news.

And Pittsburgh young people aren't a bit behind their elders in popularity abroad as well as at home. The girls are often asked to be bridal attendants for school friends in New York or Philadelphia, or in the West. And the men are equally popular as ushers and best men.

And sometimes Pittsburgh society girls are asked to be attendants at weddings in Europe. Martha Chalfant, the popular daughter of the Henry Chalfants, was just recently maid of honor at a wedding in Cannes.

Marjorie Virginia Dallett, of Philadelphia, daughter of Mrs. Morris Dallet, of Philadelphia, asked Martha to join her bridal party for her marriage to Alex. Philippi, of Winchester, England.

The wedding took place in St. George's Church at Cannes, followed by a reception at Villa Petit Trianon, the chateau of Mrs. Dallett.

Martha didn't have to travel far to reach Cannes, for, as you know, she has been spending the winter and spring abroad.

You remember, of course, pretty Mrs. John J. Rohrer, of Ellwood City, who was Charity Brown, daughter of Mrs. Samuel E. Wakely, of Celeron street, before her marriage on March 28.

Well, she will be matron of honor at the wedding of Elydah Wheeler and Ian Joyce, of Minneapolis, to be an event of June 26.

There will be quite an exodus of Pittsburgh society folks in about two weeks, I imagine, when Winifred Croft's friends go East to be present at her wedding to William Stavely Wilson, of New York. The Croft twins, Minifred and Eleanor, have been quite popular ever since they came out several years ago. And the wedding, which will take place May 19, you know, at Greenwich, Conn., at the summer home of the twins' parents, the Harry Wilson Crofts, of the Schenley Apartments, will be quite a large one, I hear.

The Croft family left for Greenwich a little over a week ago, I understand, in plenty of time to make the final preparations for the wedding.

Janet McLean has just named her bridal party. Janet, daughter of the James Francis McLeans, of Stratford avenue, you remember, will wed Karl Straub, son of the Detmar K. Straubs, of Clinton, Pa., on Saturday.

She has asked Margaret Meals to be her maid of honor, and Mrs. George Rowland, Jr., to be matron of honor. Mrs. Rowland, you'll recall, was Anne Simpson before her marriage in April. Emily Fulton and Marian Clark will be bridesmaids.

Robert Hays will be best man, and Alfred McLean, brother of the bride, John Emmerling, of Greensburg, and Frederick Truesdale, of Steubenville, will be ushers.

The wedding will take place at 8:30 o'clock that night in the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Thompson, of Edgewood, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Louise Madeleine Thompson, to William Elbert Standeven, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Standeven, of East Aurora, N. Y. A summer wedding is planned. Miss Thompson is a senior at the University of Pittsburgh, and Mr. Standeven was graduated from the Carnegie Institute of Technology in 1926. He is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Mrs. C. V. Starrett, of Melwood street, announces the marriage of her sister, Miss Nancy N. Lynch, and James Johnston Stoker, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Johnston Stoker, of Irwin, which was solemnized Friday.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Ethel Dale Laughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilmot Norby, of Greenwich, Conn., and Edward Adams Sawin, of Cambridge, Mass., son of Herbert E. Sawin, which was solemnized Saturday in the Norby home. Mr. and Mrs. Sawin will make their home in Reading. The bride is a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Edward Reed Laughlin, of Philadelphia, and a granddaughter of the late Henry A. Laughlin, of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. Her grandmother was Alice B. Denniston, of Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Dapper, of Clifton boulevard, Carrick, have announced the engagement of their daughters, Miss Alma Dapper, to Charles Portmon, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. JUNIOR WORK LAUDED AT CONFERENCE HERE

It is to be regretted that more seniors (as well as juniors) did not attend the conference held Saturday in the Twentieth Century Club by the juniors in this district of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. It was a continuously lively session, indicative of the constructive and aggressixe spirit which is to characterize the club life of the next generation. What she will achieve remains to be seen, but certain it is that the junior club woman will enter the senior ranks with such a training for the work as was never possible for her pioneering mother.

The address of Mrs. R. Maurice Snyder, of Philadelphia, state chairman of juniors, was, of course, the high light of the day. Mrs. Snyder sketched the many things juniors may take up and told of many movements they have already carried to a successful conclusion—everything from benefits to fly-swatting campaigns. She discussed the varied phases of junior problems and commented on the three types of members, workers, shirkers and jerkers, likening the last named to the man who was Santa Claus with the Salvation Army and worried from one season to the next about having to go back to work.

Mrs. Irwin L. Gillespie, junior district chairman, presided and voiced the thought of many present at the surprising talent and ability of these young women of the club world that is constantly being revealed.

Other speakers included Mrs. John E. McKirdy, district vice president of the seniors; Mrs. N. H. Jones, of the Dormont New Century juniors; Miss Grayce Marie Evans, of the Triboro juniors; Miss Lillian DeMestichas, Carrick juniors; Miss Eleanor Bair, Oakmont juniors, Mrs. J. N. McDonald, junior supervisor from the McDonald Woman's Club, and Miss Elizabeth Hamilton, of the Wilkinsburg junior section. Music consisted of assembly singing and three admirably sung solo numbers by Miss Frances Willett, accompanied by Mrs. Robert Allen. Luncheon was served in the University Club.

ASK APOLOGY IN M. E. BISHOP CHARGES

Assailing the press for mentioning the charges against Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the Pittsburgh area, in the reports of the Methodist Episcopal conference at Kansas City, an apology was demanded from Pittsburgh newspapers by the Methodist Episcopal preachers' meeting of Pittsburgh, in a resolution adopted today. Particular objection was made to the use of the word "immorality" which was used specifically in the charges against Bishop McConnell, but was explained by The Sun-Telegraph and the news service organizations as not involving the bishop in moral turpitude.

The resolution follows:

"We, the Methodist preachers of Pittsburgh and vicinity, express our profound regret at the misleading and unethical publicity given to the ridiculous charges brought against Bishop Francis J. McConnell by a Methodist preacher whose previous activities have been such as to discount any charges he might make against anybody.

OBJECT TO "IMMORALITY"

"Particularly mischievous has been the sickening reiteration of the word 'immorality' in connection with the affair. It was known from the beginning that the actions specified by the accuser had nothing to do with the sort of misconduct usually designated by the term 'immorality,' but referred only to differences of opinion concerning religious philosophy and ecclesiastical administration. To describe such matters as immoral is to indulge in language which is false and pernicious.

"We are of the conviction that a genuine concern for the truth and a moderate regard for the reputation of one of America's most distinguished moral and spiritual leaders would have prevented any newspaper from giving such a slanderous expression even a single obscure utterance in its columns. When a newspaper plays up such language in headlines and returns to it again and again, days after the original story appeared, it can only be because either it has so low a conception of newspaper ethics as to make its discerning readers hang their heads in shame or else it is maliciously intent upon poisoning the mind of the casual and hurried reader by subtle suggestion.

CALL FOR APOLOGY

"We are of the opinion that the newspapers of Pittsburgh owe a sincere and frank apology to Bishop McConnell who has been caused needless and unmerited suffering, to the Methodist Episcopal Church whose leadership has been so carelessly impugned, and to the general public, whose confidence has been sorely shaken by this exhibition of morbid reportorial eagerness for a sensation at the sacrifice of sacred personal and social interests."

The resolution did not meet the approval of all the ministers present. Newspapermen were excluded from the meeting held this morning in the chapel of the Methodist Episcopal Book Concern, but it is understood that a fiery debate ensued and the question was raised on "mixing science with your religion" by those who held that Bishop McConnell and the Conference had taken a stand against fundamentalism.

WHAT PAPERS PRINTED

In its issue of May 2 The Sun-Telegraph printed an item carried by the International News Services from Kansas City and substantially the same story was published in practically every metropolitan newspaper in the United States: The item follows:

"Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the Pittsburgh area, has been formally charged with immorality and with maladministration, it was revealed today at the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in quadrennial session here.

"The maladministration charges are in connection with two cases submitted to the annual Pennsylvania area conference last year, and the charge of immorality is based on Bishop McConnell's alleged indorsement of the theory of evolution published by the American Civil Liberties Union in January, 1927.

"The charges were filed by Rev. George A. Cooks, of Wilmington, Del

"The immorality charge deals entirely with violations of the church dogma and doctrines, and contains no element of moral turpitude.

TRADER HORN

THE GREATEST ADVENTURE STORY OF MODERN TIMES

In Lands Ne'er Before Trodden by White Men

Making Friends With the Natives and Opening Country to Commerce

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Trader Horn, writing at 73, recounts his adventures among the cannibals of Africa over half a century ago and tells how he met Nina T——, white goddess to the Isorga, and discovered that she came of an aristocratic English family. He gives many exciting incidents in connection with trading for ivory and rubber and goes through the blood-brother ceremony of the Fans. He tells how the Evilis get rid of their aged women and sings the praises of Miss Hasken, an American missionary. The capture of a missing boy by the cannibals, who ate him, threatens to cause a war and disrupt trading. Trader Horn manages to secure a peaceful settlement of the difficulty.

Native Philosophy of War

By ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN

Edited by ETHELREDA LEWIS.

CHAPTER XXIII.

I LEFT the old trading station after being thanked by all and was glad to be once more free as a bird and away from troubles of all descriptions. I had full instructions from Mr. Sinclair as well as from Gaboon, our headquarters, as to the vital importance of the use of the rivers for steam navigation, which had proved to be the real economy in trading, so that I spared no pains in charting the various channels in the big rivers as far as navigation was possible.

ALFRED A. HORN

As no white man had ever been entrusted with a task of this description and had not even visited the interior, I felt proud as I could say without fear of contradiction I was the first white man who had ever set foot in many of the places I visited and was generally welcomed by the chiefs as a good omen of the future.

Then again, as Mr. Sinclair explained to me, if I could only follow De Brazza and be the first to open up trade routes this explorer might be of good service to us in opening up the commerce of the country which would not only benefit our firm but would mean the beginning of a tremendous trade with a large portion of Africa which had practically no outlet but the Ogowe and its tributaries.

As there were many difficulties to be overcome before this was accomplished it was important that I was well supplied in every way with food and necessaries, as well as with rifles and ammunition. I carried 27 men in all, all old seasoned fighters and boys you would rely on to death.

I had always treated them well and unlike most white men had never struck a boy under any circumstances and was well loved by them. A lad that I found who did not do his best I paid off at once, generally giving him a present and always found him another job without saying anything to him except an excuse that I could not keep him.

I also carried an old poet and doctor who was considered good at his business, and as he was a beautiful harper and singer who composed his own songs he was looked upon with great favor by the crew. This man was the most beautiful story teller and had a repertoir of such a length, he always delighted his audience, young or old, by something new in the folk lore of their country.

I first visited John Ermy from Salem, Mass., an American half-breed, who was one of our principal traders, and lived on an island in the middle of the Ogowe River, with the Mpangwes on one bank and the Okellys on the opposite side.

War as Pastime

Here I learned that trouble had sprung up between these people and three or four days after I left John Ermy hostilities were in full swing and continued for several weeks.

I called on Apaque, the paramount chief of the Okellies, but he laughingly declared it was still too soon to interfere with his people, and as they had no war on anywhere else at the present time it was not only a good pastime for his men but was necessary for the education of the young adults in the true art of war, and there was only one way to learn this art and that was to be in a few battles and get used to the game, which he said was a necessity for all men.

Apaque had the name of being a great general; he was crafty and invariably won, often with less numbers. As the news of the war arrived by his runners several times a day the old chief was kept quite busy.

I next lighted out for Samiquite, a very old Okeli town. Its king was very old and was he uncle of Apaque. He was a powerful chief and although Apaque's territory joined him he was enjoying quiet, although the Mpangwes were inhabting the bank across the river. He had always lived in peace with them. Here I had the pleasure of meeting one of our traders.

Rum and Rest

His name was Yousouff and as he was an old Senegalese soldier and wore the red button of the French Legion of Honour we thought quite a lot of him and always treated the old soldier as one of our own.

At Samiquite I saw the native blacksmith make the largest spears and the best made I had ever seen. They were real works of art. Their heavy swords, which they handle with two hands, are also beautiful speciments of workmanship.

After leaving Samiquite, where the river is very wide, we came on a whole troop of elephants about a half mile up the river.

I fired dead at one old bull behind the ear and he fell limp with his trunk stretched. The larger of the younger bulls was also down, but the smaller one got clear to the other side of the river along with the rest, followed by Renchoro and the other boys. I would have willingly followed but as I had slept very little for the past week I went home to my canoe and taking a stiff wet and giving my Poet-general and Doctor a good one and a ration of rum to my hard-worked boys, I told the general to cut out the ivories and make all ready for a good rest. The old man agreed with me.

(Tomorrow, Trader Horn writes of settling a dispute over dead elephants, and promises more about Nina T——.)

FLIERS MAY VISIT CITY LATER

The Bremen fliers will not be able to visit Pittsburgh during their present tour, but may appear in this city later, according to word received today by Mayor Charles H. Kline from German Ambassador Von Prittwitz. The latter sent this message declining the city's invitation:

"While highly appreciating your warm interest in having fliers come to Pittsburgh, regret sincerely that according to schedule of itinerary just published it has not been found possible to include Pittsburgh in the visiting program. Your kind invitation has however been forwarded to fliers for future consideration."

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

IN NEW YORK it is the skyline about which all visitors comment for the ship news reporters. In Pittsburgh visitors tell the boys of the industrial aspect of the local giant and a few, who do any touring, remark on the series of inclines which connect the flatlands of the South Side with the rolling country high above the great cliff known as Mt. Washington.

MT. WASHINGTON is happily named. It overlooks the spo which the young Washington (he was then 21) recommended as a site for a fort, the record of which recommendation is to be found in Washington's journal.

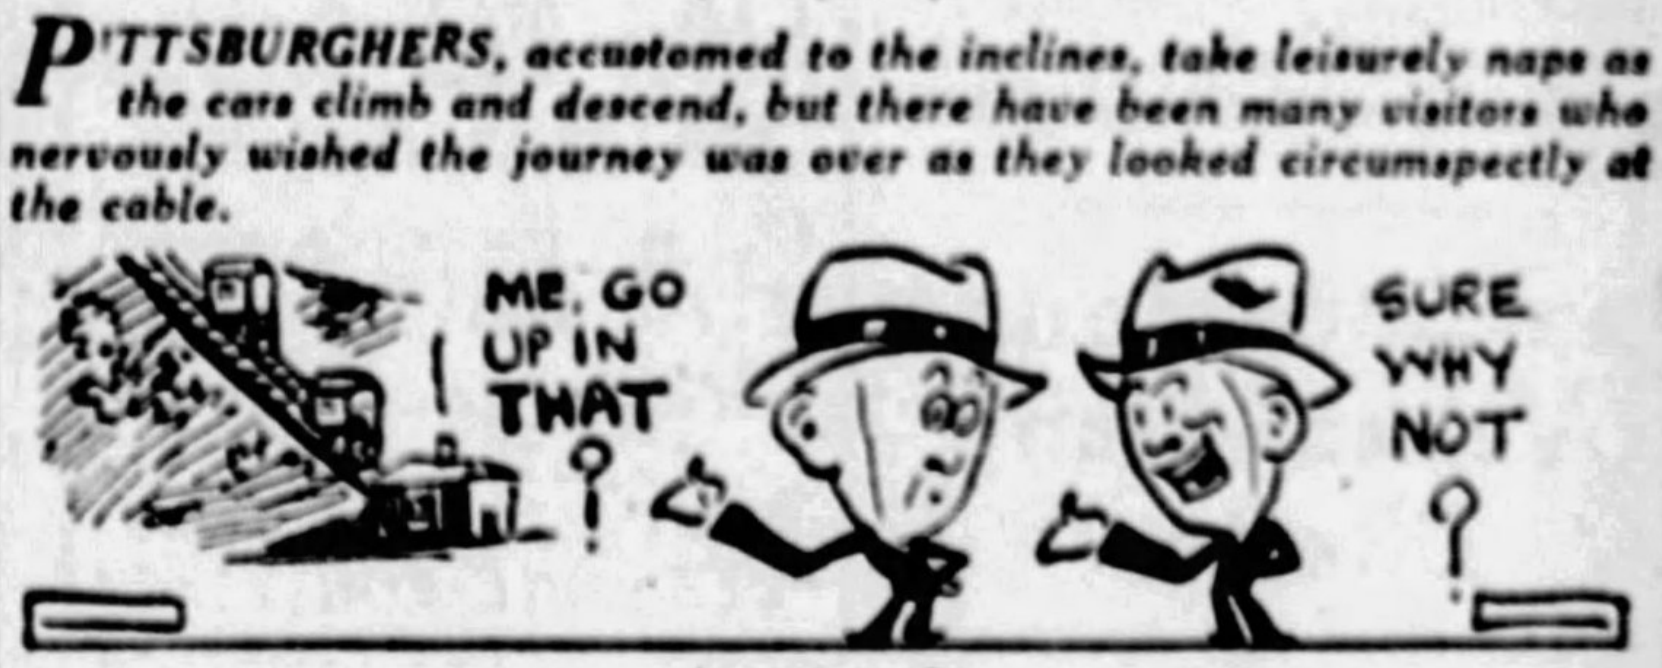
PITTSBURGHERS, accustomed to the inclines, take leisurely naps as the cars climb and descend, but there have been many visitors who nervously wished the journey was over as they looked circumspectly at the cable.



ME, GO UP IN THAT ! ?
SURE WHY NOT ?

A SPY reports a pretty scene is enacted every morning at the base of the Mt. Washington incline. A doting husband steps off the incline and waves his 'kerchief at his helpmate who hangs out a second-story window of their home atop the mount.

The story would be better, of course, if a line of husbands upon dismounting from the incline waved in unison to a series of wives stretching out of Mt. Washington windows, but, lacking this ensemble, the story of the lone 'kerchief-waver must suffice for today.

A MT. WASHINGTON woman, by the way, reports the following: Her telephone rang and she answered. "Hello, baby," said the man's voice over the telephone. It was a strange voice. "What?" ejaculated the lady. "Aren't you the lady I papered the room for yesterday?" asked the man.

Just a romantic paper-hanger who got the wrong number.

A LOCAL beauty specialist is up against a knotty problem, according to the rumors. "How much will it cost," asked a lady, "to have my face lifted in such a way that I'll look 18 years old." "That," said the beauty doctor, "will cost you $5,000." The deal was made. However, the lady in question, after the operation, declined to pay her bill. "I'll sue you," said the doctor. "Go ahead and sue," said the lady, "you'll never get a cent. I'm under age."

JUST A MOMENT — I AM WAITING FOR MY WIFE !
WELL STUPID I AM YOUR WIFE — I HAD MY FACE LIFTED !

THE political, theatrical, industrial, commercial, newspaper and many other lines of endeavor in Pittsburgh mingled at the Amen Corner banquet, which always proves to be one of the finest affairs of the year.

The Amen Corner has a broad platform, on which many different minds may meet. It is an outgrowth of a crowd of men who used to meet downtown.

If you're an out-of-towner and you missed the last affair get in line for next year.

GRAFTON DUVALL tells how the railway company officials practice the courtesy they tactfully preach to their conductors and motormen. Recently, a new type of street car was on an inspection trip. Many high officials were aboard. After a stop near the Highland Park barns the car pulled out and a stranger aboard was noticed. "This is an inspection trip," said one of the party to the stranger. "I have a pass and wanted to ride downtown," said the stranger, making ready to leave. "Well, stay right on," said one of the officials, and so the stranger got an idea of railway courtesy from a high source.

AND now, after that, we wonder if the loose switch at Wyanoka and Brownsville road, Carrick, could be fixed so that we, who sit on neighboring porches, can hear better the locusts and the crickets.

Three Million, Preceded by Dollar Sign, Lures Tom Mix Back Into Screen Activity

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright 1928, King Features Syndicate.)

LOS ANGELES, May 7.

WHEN Tom Mix told Hollywood he was bidding it goodby for the Argentina pampas, his line included a wise-crack to the effect that there were a million steers roaming the South American prairies, and that he hoped he wouldn't get a "bum steer." But it seems that Tom gave the "bum steer," for he is all set to come back to work for two years more. For which they say he'll get $3,000,000. Which is quite sufficient to make any one forget the pampas and its wild bulls, for the bull of the picture business.

Day by day in every way Lina Basquette is proving true by prophecy that she will be the big bet of the 1928 crowd of "baby stars." Lina will be seen in some of the best pictures of the year. "The Godless Girl," for instance, which De Mille believes will be as sensational as "The King of Kings;" "Annapolis," which, with its background of the U. S. Naval Academy, is sure to be a success; and now she has been selected to play the leading feminine role in "Celebrity," with Robert Armstrong. If your memory needs refreshing on "Celebrity," it is the play by a New York newspaperman, William Keefe, which had Broadway giggling over the way in which it pokes fun at fight champs who go in for poetry. Robert Armstrong is the actor who gave the world such a lot of fun as the bum pug in the stage version of "Is Zat So." Lina may make "Celebrity" before they film "Annapolis," as it is whispered there are certain questions to be smoothed out before the naval authorities will lend their old academy for location. Better be careful, or Lina will take the picture at West Point, and the Middies will miss something.

After a neck-and-neck race between John Boles, Ralph Forbes and Conrad Nagel for the masculine role opposite Greta Garbo, the dark horse has won. Conrad Nagel was considered an outside bet for the part, but he came in the winner, and now "War in the Dark" is all set to fire its first gun. Fred Niblo, who was George Cohan's brother-in-law, will direct.

The old days of Coney Island and the vogue years ago for "ice cream sandwiches" were suggested to me when I saw Joe Bonomo all made up as an Egyptian what-not or something on the set of "Noah's Ark." Joe was once a Coney Island strong man, and a member of the family who controlled the "ice cream sandwich" business by Coney's sad sea waves.

Paramount is not going to renew Pola Negri's contract. Some have said she would go abroad. Others that she would make an affiliation with Fox. Now it seems that both were correct. Pola intimates that she will make a Fox film in Europe, perhaps more than one. There is no doubt but what Pola is one of our most brilliant screen players. The pictures that brought her to America prove that. Thus her undeniable failure here must be due to causes other than herself. Whatever the reason, film salesmen will tell you that she is "poison" at the boxoffice. Maybe the brainy Winnie Sheehan, of the Fox organization, will perform another of his modern miracles and put Pola back at the top of the heap where she belongs. I, for one, hope so. Not only for Pola's sake, but because it is a confession of frightful incompetence on the part of American moviedom that it cannot handle such a sensationally fine actress to its advantage and hers.

Associates Honor Veteran Film Director

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—Friends and former associates of D. W. Griffith are arriving from the most distant sections of the country to be on hand tomorrow when a testimonial is to be tendered Griffith on the occasion of his twentieth anniversary as a motion picture director.

Griffith began his directorial career with the old Biograph studio on West Fourteenth street, New York City. His first group of pictures, scarcely more than half a reel in length, was known as the "Dolly series." Since that time Griffith has contributed some of the most artistic productions the screen has known, notably among them being "The Birth of a Nation," "Broken Blossoms," "Way Down East," "Intolerance" and "America."

Eric Von Stroheim, Donald Crisp, William Beaudine and other directors who began their careers under Griffith's tutelage will be present.

MANY PERFORMERS IN 101 RANCH SHOW

Indians, Cossacks, cowboys, vaqueros, foreign cavalry, bronchos and elephants are among the 1,100 persons and 600 animals that make up the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, which comes to Pittsburgh for two days, Monday, May 14. The 101 Ranch carries spread of canvas that crowds the acreage of the regular circus lots in the great cities, as the big top is 540 by 300 feet—30 feet longer than any other tent ever built, it is said. Performances will be given at 2 and 8 p. m. There will be a parade at 10:30 a. m. daily.

CHILD, 2, DIES AFTER EATING STRYCHNINE

DUBOIS, Pa., May 7.—Carl A. Watson, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex A. Watson of Youngstown, O., died from the effects of eating several tablets containing strychnine. Mrs. Watson was visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred Rishell.

First Sells-Floto Performance Here Today

The Sells-Floto Circus gives the first of its four performances at the show grounds, Fifth and Penn avenue, East End, this afternoon. There will be three rings and two stages in action.

The Sells-Floto menagerie includes 53 cages of rare wild animals, five herds of elephants, three herds of camels, a two ton hippopotamus and a pygmy hippo of which there are only two in America, one with Sells-Floto circus the other with Bronx Zoo in New York City. Five hundred horses are used in the circus proper.

Many famous riders, including George Hanneford and the Riding Hannefords, are among the performers.

SHOWS LISTED NEXT WEEK

"The Family Upstairs," a comedy dramatization of a typical present-day, middle-class family, will be the offering of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt Theater during the week beginning Monday, May 14.

Pending the box office sale, which does not open until Thursday morning of this week, mail orders are now being received for "King of Kings," which plays a brief engagement in the Alvin Theater, beginning Monday night, May 14. After the opening, two performances will be given daily.

"Wings," picture of war in the air which opens its fifth week in the Nixon with today's matinee, depicts in realistic and gripping scenes the heroism of American aviators in the World War.

Brennan and Rogers, presenting a comedy female impersonation of "Margie," will be the headline act of the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis Theater week of May 14. The screen attraction will be a comedy, "Why Sailors Go Wrong."

UPSIDE DOWN IN AIR SHOWN IN M-G-M NEWS

Flying upside-down over the city of Washington, Al Williams, Navy aerial ace, established a new record in such flying in a demonstration made especially for M-G-M News. How the city of Washington looks from the plane in its unnatural position and how a plane looks while performing this strange feat are vividly shown in the current issue of M-G-M News.

Many Would Play Napoleon On Screen

Charlie Chaplin has received so many applications for the role of Napoleon in Chaplin's announced film concept of the Corsican's personality and private life that he is willing to believe all the anecdotes which begin with the line, "He thinks he's Napoleon. . . ."

Carlyle Robinson, Chaplin's Hollywood studio publicity representative, writes that many would-be Napoleons have offered their services without compensaton; that several have even proffered bonuses to begin screen careers under Chaplin's direction. Wives have written comparing their mates to Napoleon. The wife of a tailor wrote Mr. Chaplin that she conceived herself to be the ideal Josephine.

Only six professional actors applied for the Napoleonic assignment.

The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Mary Tells Saxon That He Is Indebted to Her for $4,000

SHE leveled her eyes to his. They were no longer blue but a shadowed green. She looked at him intently.

"You understand that I'm not going with them!"

"Can you get out of it?"

"Of course! When I marry you. That's why I want to get it settled now. We might as well."

"If that's your only escape, Mary, my dear, you'll find yourself in China."

"You almost sound as though you meant it."

Her pallor and her suppressed nervous excitement were lost on him. They had so often talked in this wise. He now said lightly: "What language shall I use so that you'll know I mean it?"

She was sitting very close to him. She now stumped out her cigaret on her slipper. And for a moment remained leaning down, her hands clasped on her knees.

She sat up abruptly: "Give me a cigaret! Never mind, I'll reach." She slipped her hand to his vest pocket, felt about.

He laughed. "Take your hands out of my pockets and ask for what you want."

Slowly she withdrew her hand—smiled. After a weighty moment raised her lips for the cigaret he lighted. "Then you think I'll have to go to China with them, Saxon?"

"I fear it greatly, dear Mary."

Said she, with her pallor intensifying. "It is one thing to deny with words and another to accept with deeds. For the past eight months you've tacitly accepted our engagement."

"How, Mary?"

"So much so that everyone is talking about it!"

"And I'm responsible for that? In what way did I accept an engagement? I've not concealed my intentions. They've been rather brutally apparent. In the past two years I've not once contemplated marriage nor given anyone reason to think that I would."

"You never intended to marry me?"

"Is it a surprise to you, Mary?"

"Then it's all off between us?"

"It was never on."

"No? You didn't intend to marry me last March?"

"Why last March?"

"Oh, for the small matter of $4,000!"

* * *

He grew livid with the shock. He rose to his feet and stood there smothered with fury. But she went on, hostile with resentment: "You understood perfectly well why I undertook to back you. You accepted the money knowing this. When a man accepts $4,000 from a girl knowing that he may never be able to pay it back and knowing the girl believes his protests of love . . ."

"Protests of love?"

"Did you never tell me that you loved me? That I was unique—charming — the one tolerant woman in the world."

"I didn't understand you were paying $4,000 for my continued regard. The money"—he choked on the word—"the money will be repaid!"

His angry, murderous steps echoed through the empty house. The front door banged.

Mary Eunice blinked. She opened her hand and stared at the key lying on her palm.

She looked at this until her eyes grew hard. You bet—the money would be repaid!

CHAPTER LXXII.

HE was smothered with rage and shame. He drove like a madman, almost sobbing with his fury—sobbing and striking a closed fist on the wheel. What a fool—what a blind, contemptible fool!

He was beside himself and thought of rushing back to Mary Pennings, jamming the accusation down her throat, shaking her into white, terrified recanting.

He took money from her with the tacit understanding they were engaged and would be married? Took money knowing he might never be able to repay it?

The charge made him scarlet. There was never even the remote suggestion of such partnership or such a justification.

He had taken the money. Why—?

Abruptly he considered this and was overcome with humiliation. He had taken it and had never perceived the unpleasant and compromising situation that might arise. Because he was a guileless, conceited fool and believed a young, attractive woman was honestly and sincerely interested in his career.

He remembered exactly, arguments she had used: "You have this chance to make yourself nationally known. Why shouldn't you accept an advance fee? That's perfectly business-like. You're going to build the Manor house. What does it mean to my father whether he pays now or three or four months hence, when it means everything to you?

"Why should you put a silly pride above your work? If I were all fired up the way you are over this contest, I'd feel justified in robbing a bank to get the wherewithal."

He had flushed to that beautiful understanding, believing she appreciated his flaming creative urge.

The blow to his pride was sorest—that he had been sucked into this.

And she had gone around boasting that a man will do anything for a woman when he is mad about her.

He stopped the car before his home and sat stonily considering this. Mad about Mary Pennings. No—not even in the beginning.

Intrigued—yes. Who wouldn't be? She was appealing—at first glance, even beautiful. So he had been exultant in his power; jaunty about it when Mary paid those first visits to his office. Subtle, delightful, making his nerves tingle when her lips moved upward feeling for his.

Moments of weakness when he had remotely speculated on a marriage. The moments were brief. And in the last months he told himself confidently that he had NEVER, even in idleness, visualized Mary Pennings as his wife.

Why, these last weeks, even anticipating her interruptions, his jaw would set. Couldn't she see he needed his time—every precious moment of it? Couldn't she realize that he was bored with her inane prattle and secretly amused and measuring her sexy tricks? Couldn't she see that he wasn't giving a damn for her head on his shoulders; that he'd plumbed her mystery, and there was nothing to it, after all?

No, Mary couldn't see this. The possessive air flatters a man when exercised by the woman whose lure is new; it sets to bristling every cantankerous impulse when used by the woman whose hold is waning.

But women are obtuse about this and to themselves perennially charming. They don't believe that a man is actually weary of them. There is always some external cause for faithlessness.

So Mary could stand at the window, letting her head rest on his shoulder, let her lips reach upward to close on his—she could do this and expect him to succumb . . . expect him to agree to this marriage which she wanted, but which was repellant to him.

She could come up with a smile and lead him to the sofa. Incredible that he would resist her. So incredible that it made her abusive.

"You didn't intend to marry me last March?"

"Why last March?"

"Oh, for the small matter of $4,000!"

He yanked his neck against this hot, scourging indignation. Sordid and humiliating to have an affair end like this. He should have mastered the situation—should have foreseen.

He would get the $4,000 and send it to Mary Pennings if it meant murder.

In his room he unclasped his wrist watch and noted the time—2 o'clock. He shouldn't have gone with her tonight. He didn't want to celebrate the completion of his plans with Mary Pennings!

Her accusation was a stain on the beauty of his work. He would remove that! Before tomorrow passed, eliminate utterly all connection between Mary Pennings and himself.

Half an hour after Saxon left, Mary remained tensely quiet—staring at her palm and the key.

She went through the evening again. Saw herself leaning across the table with that luring "Saxon, shall we?"

He pretended not to understand, even when she said: "Shall we spend that rest together?"

And when they danced and she rubbed her cheek on his with a gentle: "Saxon, why do you wish to put it off?" he thought he caught twit her: "Why put it on?"

She had not accepted this. No reason why she should accept it!

So she had brought him to this intimate room of hers—this warm, inviting background. She saw herself turning to him as they reached the stair, moving with a soft, thrilling laugh into his arms.

And that scene at the window, recalling to him their provocative hours. Engulfed in her emotions. She reached caressing hands to his face. And found lips unresponsive.

He had dared to walk over to that table, reach for his hat with casual: "I like you and your picture and this lovely view, but it's a bit late to dilate on all your various charms." Insolent like that!

But she had led him to the sofa—leaned against him, acquiescent, adoring.

"Can you get out of it, Mary?"

"Of course—when I marry you!"

"If that's your only escape, Mary, my dear, you'll find yourself in China. What language shall I use so that you'll know I mean it?"

She took the key and bit it. A bright red fury spotted either cheek.

She went to the wall and rang a bell. She sat down and waited—smoking and tapping her foot. Smiling and tapping her foot.

(To be Continued Tomorrow.)

Pirates to Hold No Advantage Over Giants In Coming Series Regardless of Condition Of New Yorkers—Dawson's Form Great Aid to Pirates in Pitching Plight—Fans Hope Cohen Will Be Able to Play.

EVEN if the Giants should be unable to present their full strength in the four-game series with the Pirates opening here tomorrow afternoon, the Bushmen will not have any advantage as a result of the condition of the New York outfit.

Carmen Hill.

For the Buccaneers themselves will be under a severe handicap as a result of losing the services of their most effective pitchers against the Giants.

Both Carmen Hill and Lee Meadows, bespectacled moundsmen, will be unavailable for the New York series unless Hill recovers from his latest attack of spinal trouble more rapidly than expected, and Manager Bush will be thus deprived of his most effective weapons against the club that is beginning to loom up as Pittsburgh's most dangerous rival for the 1927 pennant.

GLANCING over last year's record, the exceptional value of Hill and Meadows against New York is readily perceived. The clubs broke even in their season's series of 22 games, and of Pittsburgh's 11 victories no fewer than eight were pitched by Hill and Meadows.

Hill was the star performer of the entire staff against the McGrawites defeating them in five out of seven games, while Meadows downed them in three out of five games.

IT'S quite a loss to be left without the services of two hurlers of that caliber in the most important series of the season up to date. The specialist who has been treating Hill says there is a remote possibility that he may be able to work in the final tilt with the Giants on Friday, but that the odds are against this, creating a situation that removes any handicap under which the Giants might have been placed here if Billy Terry, Andy Cohen, Johnny Cummings, Bill Clarkson and Alf Spohrer are kept out of the local series by the effects of their recent attacks of influenza.

THE splendid form shown by Joe Dawson of late promises to help out the Pirates in their pitching plight, as with Burleigh Grimes, Remy Kremer, John Miljus and Dawson to shoot against the New Yorkers, Manager Bush will have a face card to play in every game despite the loss of Hill and Meadows.

Joe Dawson

True, Dawson wobbled a bit in the eighth inning Saturday and it was necessary to send Miljus to his rescue, but Joe probably would have been able to finish in good style but for a wet ball and an argument with Umpire Barry McCormick. As it was, Dawson pitched splendid ball until his control of the wet sphere wavered in the eighth, and in this game and the one in which he relieved Miljus against the Cubs last Wednesday he hurled 11 straight innings without allowing a run.

YOU may be surprised to learn that, with the season not yet four weeks old, Dawson has already won as many games for Pittsburgh as he won during his entire stay with the club last year, but it's a fact.

Dawson joined the Pirates on June 15 last year and made his first slab appearance two days later. From that time to the finish of the campaign he won only three games against seven lost.

This year Dawson has already won three games against only one lost. He has defeated Cincinnati, Chicago and Boston once each and lost one game to Chicago.

IT WILL be a keen disappointment to Pittsburgh fans in general if Andy Cohen is still too ill to play in any of the games of the Pittsburgh series, particularly to the 4,500 members of the Y. M. H. A., who recently completed arrangements for turning out in force to pay tribute to the Jewish star in his first Forbes Field appearance tomorrow afternoon, and to present a handsome gift to him.

Melvin Ott

But if Cohen is unable to play here, local fans will be given a chance to see another interesting character in a new role. The latter is none other than Melvin Ott, the "boy wonder," who, in the opinion of McGraw, will one day develop into one of the bright stars in the majors. Ott has been with the Giants since he was 16, only reached his nineteenth mile-post on March 2, last. He has been seen here only as a pinch hitter or as an outfielder, but McGraw has tried him at both second and third base this spring, and at present the youngster is filling in for Cohen at the keystone.

IN making their great start of five victories in six games in the first lap of their 18-game stay at home last week—and their lone defeat was suffered only after a battle of 11 innings—the Pirates made a showing in the batting department that

Robertson, Mulligan In Perfect Game

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

"IT CERTAINLY is a pleasant memory—that perfect game we had in Detroit," mused Charley Robertson, hero of the great diamond classic of the White Sox, who is in Pittsburgh as a member of the Braves.

"No, there were not many hard hit balls in the contest, as I recall it," he answered in reply to a question regarding the various drives of the Tigers.

"You see," he continued, "it was a Sunday game and there was such a big crowd in attendance that there was an overflow on the field. If there had been any long wallops they would have gone into the crowd.

"And what a thrill came over me in that ninth inning. The first two batters went out and Johnny Bassler was sent up as a pinchhitter.

PINCH HITTER LAST BATTER

"Bassler seemed to be in dou't as to which of two bats to use. Finally he came to the plate, but then he decided he wanted the other bat and he went back to get it.

"I remember distinctly walking over toward Eddie Mulligan, now a Pirate, who was playing short-

BARNES, HAGEN NEAR TOP

SANDWICH, Eng., May 7.—(AP.)—Wild Bill Mehlhorn, prominent American golfer, returned a fine 72 for the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualification play for the British Open golf championship today and was leading the field.

Whimsical, tricky winds bothered the field throughout, but Mehlhorn always was steady, except at the ninth and eleventh, and sometimes brilliant. Only a misfit 6 at the eleventh prevented him from shooting a dazzling last nine holes. As it was, he came back in 35 strokes, three under par, and hanging up the amazing record of birdies at the tenth, twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth holes.

He almost made it five in a row at the sixteenth, where his putt just missed a 2, and the same thing happened at the seventeenth, where his putt for a birdie 3 rimmed the cup. However, he was lucky at the fif-

THE new week offers many bright opportunities to the rejuvenated Pirates. Only one and one-half games removed from the leadership of the league, the Bushwhackers might ride gracefully to the crest if they were to do as well in the ensuing as they did last week.

The wild scramble for possession of the honor position involves nearly every club in the league. That condition augurs well for a great race.

GIANTS' LEAD SLIM

Many times in recent years the Giants have been able to annex a big advantage in the early days of the fight but the beginning of the first intersectional strife of the present sweepstakes finds the Manhattan athletes barely holding on to the top rung.

The Buccos spent Sunday playing an exhibition game in Johnstown.

THE PERFECT GAME

HEROES IN ONE OF ONLY FIVE PERFECT GAM'S IN MAJOR LEAGUE HISTORY AND BOX SCORE

Formerly teammates with the Chicago White Sox, Pitcher Charley Robertson of the Boston Braves and Infielder Eddie Mulligan of the Pirates now are rivals in the National League, but along with it buddies bound together by a memory that will cling with them to the grave, the memory of the perfect game in which both participated and one of only five such in all major league history. The classic was hurled by Robertson for the Chicago White Sox against the Detroit Tigers at Detroit on Sunday, April 30, 1922. None has been registered since and the last one before that was Addie Joss' perfect game for Cleveland against the White Sox on October 2, 1908, which he won, 1-0. John Lee Richmond, pitching for Worcester on June 12, 1880, against Cleveland in the old National League, pitched the first perfect game—and perfect game means that not a batter reaches first base in nine innings, whether by a hit, walk, hit batter or error. Richmond won, 1-0. Exactly five days later, John Montgomery Ward, later a famous lawyer and a potent factor in the rise of the Federal League, pitched a perfect game for Providence against Buffalo in the National League, winning, 5-0. It was almost a quarter of a century later before the third perfect game appeared in the majors, and it was hurled by that grand old character, Denton T. (Cy) Young, for the Boston Americans against Philadelphia. The score was 3-0. Addie Joss' 1-0 perfect game against the White Sox, in 1908, with Ed Walsh opposing him, followed and then came Robertson's masterpiece, almost 14 years later. Only six balls were batted out of the infield against Robertson and they proved easy chances for the outfielders. A remarkable feature was that Mulligan, playing shortstop, usually a busy sector, did not have a fielding chance, Harvey McClellan, playing third base, and Eddie Collins, at second, getting all the opportunities to scintillate in the field. However, Eddie did get one of the two extra-base hits, a double, off Herman Pillette, the Detroit pitcher, who opposed Robertson. Ty Cobb managed the Tigers and he sent two pinch-hitters, Clark and Bassler, in against Robertson in the ninth inning, but they failed to break the charm he held over the Jungaleer bats.

MEXICO SOCCER TEAM ON WAY TO AMSTERDAM

MEXICO CITY, May 7.—(AP.)—With Amsterdam as their eventful goal, the Mexican Olympic football team was headed for New York today. Owing to lack of time the Mexicans have cancelled three games they were to have played in New York and will engage in only one game at Paris before the Olympics.

Vic Aldridge Quits Holdout

CINCINNATI, May 7.—(AP.)—Vic Aldridge, holdout pitcher of the New York Giants, has come to terms with Manager John McGraw and has asked to be reinstated in the ranks of organized baseball, J. J. Tierney, secretary of the New York club, announced. Until Aldridge receives formal notification of his reinstatement from K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, he cannot affix his signature to a binding contract.

Aldridge was traded to New York by Pittsburgh for Burleigh Grimes last winter. He will leave with the Giants for Pittsburgh tonight.

Aldridge has been working out since the season began and is reported to be in good condition. The terms of the contract were not given out, though it is believed that a compromise was effected.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

SANDY SEIFERT, North Side heavyweight, almost had a good one pulled on himself in his recent bout with K. O. Christner, the new knockout sensation, at Akron. Christner is more than 30 years old and has been boxing only about a year, but has been going great guns because of the power of his punch. He is a fine drawing card and the house generally is sold out a week in advance when he boxes in his home town. Sandy proved too smart for him and cleverly outboxed him to win the honors. They are likely to be rematched for a big open-air show in the Rubber City during the summer.

"ABOUT a week before our fight," Sandy was telling me yesterday, "Sury Welch of Akron, the promoter, who also is supposed to have a 'piece' of Christner, was in New York and looked up my manager, Jimmy Bronson, and told him Christner had a bad right hand and would have to favor it in the fight. He didn't want to postpone the show and would try to do his best under the circumstances.

"He didn't ask that I go easy on Christner, or anything like that, but the intimation was there. At least the suggestion that Christner would not be dangerous for me with his right hand out of commission. I was told about the conversation and naturally gave it some thought when we entered the ring.

"WE DEVOTED most of the first round to feeling each other out and nothing out of the ordinary developed. However, the second round wasn't very old before Christner shot over his right. It was one of the hardest punches I ever sampled, almost tearing off my head. As I circled around out of danger I did some quick thinking and came to the conclusion that if that bird had a bum right maulie I was glad I wasn't in there with him when he had nothing the matter with him. In other words, that the talk about his hand being bad was the bunk, intended to take me off my guard.

"I took no further liberties with my opponent, but kept on the move, outscoring him, and in the

Daily Laps Made Longer

GARY, Ind., May 7.—(AP.)—Gone are the easy laps in the transcontinetal bunion derby.

Beginning with today's 64-mile trek from Gary to Mishawaka, Ind., the longest of the race so far, the runners will have to plod 40 or more miles daily instead of the customary 25 to 40 miles. South Bend was to have been today's stop, but Promoter Pyle last night made the change to Mishawaka, which is four miles further along the road to New York and "finish."

Although two Hoosiers, Roy McCurtry, of Indianapolis, and John Stone, of Marion, won yesterday's 28.4-mile lap from Chicago to Gary, in 3:21:07, Peter Gavuzzi, of Southampton, England, boosted his lead in the race. Gavuzzi came in fourth in 3:32:25 to make his total elapsed time for the 2,430.7 miles from Los Angeles, 394:48:25. Andrew Payne, second place occupant, came in seventh in 3:40:50, giving him a total elapsed time of 400:57:48; John Salo, of Passiac, N. J., finished the lap second, gaining seven minutes and 57 seconds on Gavuzzi. Salo is in third place with an elapsed time of 429:18:13.

Five more runners and a referee, Arthur Duffey, of Boston, quit the race at Chicago, bringing the field down to 65 survivors. The retired runners, who had completed 2,402.3 miles, were: Niels Nielson, Chicago; A. G. Barnes, Middlefield, O.; William Meyers, Missoula, Mont.; David Davies, Sandwich, Ont., and Walter Grafsky of St. Paul. All were considered hopelessly out of the race for the 10 prizes. Harold (Red) Grange, assistant to C. C. Pyle, promoter of the derby, took Duffey's place as referee. Duffey quit as he had to get back to his newspaper work, he said.

Tomorrow's lap is from South Bend to Ligonier, Ind.

The leaders and their elapsed time follow:

Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, Eng., 394:48:25; Andrew Payne, Claremore Okla., 400:57:48; John Salo, Passiac, N. J., 429:18:13; Philip Granville, Hamilton, Ont., 435:22:27; Ed. Gardner, Seattle, 446:08:14; Mike Joyce, Cleveland, 447:24:24; William Kerr, Minneapolis, 450:44:58.

Gene Set To Train In Week

NEW YORK, May 7.—(INS.)—Gene Tunney's first training gesture of 1928 at his camp in the Adirondacks will be made the first of next week. The heavyweight champion's trainer, Lou Fink, departed today for Speculator, N. Y., with Gene's training paraphernalia and will have a ring rigged up and all accoutrements ready by the end of the week. Tunney expects to leave New York the latter part of this week.

Jack Dempsey is speeding West today for a stay of about three weeks in California. He returned yesterday from a stay of several days with the family of his wife, Estelle Taylor Dempsey, at Wilmington, Del., and left last night for Los Angeles. He may do light training in the mountains before his return, but he seems definitely out of the ring for this season

COHEN CERTAIN TO BE HERE

"Cohen greatly improved. Certain to be with us when we arrive in Pittsburgh. Proceed with your arrangements."

This is the text of a telegram received by the officials of the Young Men's Hebrew Association late Sunday from James Tierney, secretary of the Giants, in response to a message sent him to ascertain whether or not it was feasible to go through with the plans to hold an "Andy Cohen Day" at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association had arranged some time ago to honor the only Jewish regular in the major leagues tomorrow, but an attack of influenza while in Cincinnati threatened to prevent the celebration. Cohen, however, has shown a big improvement and will be with the Giants when they reach town tomorrow.

Several thousand members of the Y. M. H. A. will gather at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon to pay tribute to Cohen. Judge Josiah Cohen, eminent local jurist, has accepted an invitation to present the youngster a gift, purchased by the members of the Y. M. H. A. The Y. M. H. A. rooters will occupy a special section directly behind the Giants' dugout.

Tomorrow night in the Y. M. H. A. gymnasium the officials will present an all-star amateur boxing show, featuring the leading simon-pure fighters in this section, as an added attraction on the "Andy Cohen Day" program. An invitation has been extended to the members of the Pirates and Giants to attend as guests of honor and many of them will be at the ringside tomorrow night.

teenth, where a hooked drive hit a bank and trickled back on the course.

Sarazen's arching shots were made prey to chronic inaccuracies by the shifting winds and his putting kept him in hot water throughout. His 39 of the last nine holes was typical of his outgoing performance.

The British professionals, George Duncan and Len Holland, with 73's, followed Mehlhorn, while E. R. Whitcomb, another Britisher, had a 75. Gene Sarazen, with a 77 slipped on several rather short putts, while young John McHugh of San Francisco, who never before competed in a big open outside of California, led the amateurs with a 77. Lester Hartley, English amateur, had a 78, while Dr. W. Tweddell, last year's British amateur champion, could do no bether than an 86.

Mehlhorn's card was as follows:
Out ...4 5 3 4 5 3 5 3 5—37
In ....3 6 3 4 4 4 3 4 4—35—72

Sarazen's card—
Out ...5 4 3 5 5 4 5 3 4—38
In ....4 5 4 5 4 5 3 4 5—39—77

McHugh's card—
Out ...4 5 4 4 4 4 6 5 4—40
In ....3 4 4 4 3 4 5 5 5—37—77

Douglas Grant, American, playing on Prince's course, said that the conditions there were very difficult because of a heavy channel wind, and considered his 83 there a good score.

The British professionals, who were out early, appeared to have their noses to the grindstone and to be struggling for their fours. The scores were: Aubrey Boomer, 78; J. H. Taylor, 82; Alex Herd, 79; Fred Robson, 79; Percy Booker, 80, and Jack White, no return.

Joshua Crane, the veteran amateur of Boston, was the first American to start at St. George's and could do no better than a 91, his card being as follows:
Out.......... 6 6 4 4 5 3 8 4 5—45
In............ 5 5 6 5 6 7 4 4 4—46—91

Crane startled the staid gallery by using a sawed-off putter and took three putts on each of the first two holes, getting sixes.

Crane's putter was an implement only 18 inches long, and crouching with his left hand on his knee, he putted with his right hand only, his forefinger down the shaft about six inches from the head. He appeared to be stroking rather than putting the ball.

McHugh maintained the American custom of dressing gaily for the British galleries. He appeared in black and white checked plus fours with sweater and stocks to match of rattlesnake design. It was about the brightest garb ever seen on this course.

ARMOUR SHOOTS

Long Jim Barnes, who won the British championship in 1925, was around in 74. Tommy Armour, open champion of the United States, needed 77.

Tommy Armour's card:
Out .... 6 4 4 5 4 3 5 3 6—40
In .... 4 5 4 4 5 4 4 4 3—37—77

Playing the St. George course, Barnes had a perfect par 35 on the outward nine. Coming in the lanky pro took three putts on the tenth and eleventh greens and failed to get up with his second shot on the fifteenth. Jim was forced to take a five there and still another on the eighteenth, where he found a bunker. This grief ran the homeward nine total to 39.

THE opening day session out at Sullivan Field with Dick Guy's team providing the attraction sure did draw a capacity house for Manager McGrady. And the cash customers saw a slugging bee, the home team staging a grandstand finish in the eighth to win the game 10 to 8.

THE outstanding feature of the game was a wonderful catch of Dugo, St. Johns' left fielder, who climbed on the fence in the second frame to make a catch and then turn a somersault. And so the cash customers got another treat. Brown did the heavy hitting, getting a double and a single.

BOTH managers, feeling that a workout would help the pitchers, used three. Seeman and Bubbles Morrisey both seeing action for St. Johns. Dick Guy, also realizing that pitching is going to mean a lot to his club, gave three of his hurlers a chance to show their stuff on the mound. Thorne, Hill and Weber all working in the order named. The fans saw quite a parade of twirlers.

THE next battle for St. John is the Universal tilt at Sullivan Field tomorrow night. This game will find last seasons' class A champions playing in Pittsburgh for the first time in a long time and should prove a good attraction.

THE other big tilt of yesterday, featuring the Beltzhoover County Leaguers meeting their traditional rivals at Stewart avenue, was another slugging session, with Beltzhoover on the long end of a 9 to 8 score.

The wonderful crowd saw a good game, but Beltzhoover was shorthended, Dick Goldberg, Kestner and Gibson were all playing for Beaver Falls at Youngstown against the Boston Braves, and who knows but one of the trio might take the eye of the fellow who travels with the club headed by Slattery.

WANER, who looks quite a lot like his famous brothers, did not manage to get a hit, but seemed very fast around the initial sack. Of course he has not been getting the proper amount of practice and naturally is off on his batting eye.

CLARK twirled all the game for the County Leaguers and Hurley started for the Jordans, but was lifted in the final inning in favor of Wright. That short field is going to give the big hitters plenty to shoot at this season, and this seemed to be the mark yesterday.

THE strength of the newly formed W. O. W. team of McKees Rocks manifested itself yesterday when, with a banner crowd on hand, the Rox outfit took over the Braddock Kovals by a 7 to 1 score. Jedinak and Cholke led the hitting for Manager Roscoe's club, each kicking in with three hits.

ROSCOE started the game for the W. O. W.s and only allowed three hits the innings he worked. Otey finished the game and had the same success. Winters, playing middle field for the visitors, looked good and collected two hits. Welsh did not pitch a bad game and struck out six of the home boys.

PAUL WANER, voted the most valuable player in the National League last season, not only has batted safely in his last 13 games, but has made at least one hit in 18 out of the 19 games the Pittsburgh Pirates have played to date.

In his last 13 games Punch 'Em Paul has registered 25 hits, including five doubles and a triple, in 57 legal trips to the plate for an average of .439.

Glenn Wright, another Pirate, seems to be regaining his batting eye, having hit safely in each of his last nine games.

Lloyd Waner, Pirate centerfielder, has made three hits in each of his last three games. The Boston Braves were the victims in each instance. His record against the Beaneaters is nine hits in 16 trips to the plate, which is batting .563.

In receiving credit for yesterday's 5-to-4 victory over the Phillies, Percy Malone, Cubs' right-hander, broke a losing streak of five straight games. Four of the defeats came in the role of relief hurler.

CHARLEY LUCAS, Reds' right-hander, registered his fifth victory of the season yesterday when he defeated the Giants in 10 innings, 4 to 3.

Lucas has started five games for the Reds so far this season and has gone the distance in all of them. His record for the season is five victories and one defeat.

One of his triumphs was registered after he had relieved the starting hurler.

The failure of his teammates to hit behind him has cost Lester Sweetland three successive defeats.

The Philadelphia southpaw has gone the distance in each of his last three games, losing twice to Brooklyn, 3 to 2 and 3 to 1, and once to Chicago in 11 innings, 5 to 4.

Douglas McWeeny and Watson Clark, pitchers with the Brooklyn Robins, each boast three victories and no defeats.

McWeeny received credit for the 5-to-4 triumph the Robins scored over the Cardinals in St. Louis yesterday, although he was lifted in the ninth. His other victims were the Phillies, beating them twice by scores of 8 to 6 and 3 to 1.

Clark defeated the Braves, 3 to 2, the Phils, 3 to 0, and the Cardinals, 3 to 2.

THE Detroit Tigers yesterday scored their third shutout victory of the season and in each instance the score has been 3 to 0.

Whitehill defeated the Browns on April 29, Carroll defeated the White Sox on April 23 and yesterday Billings blanked the Red Sox.

Sammy Gray, erstwhile Athletic mound star, now hurling for the St. Louis Browns, is the first major league hurler to register six triumphs this season.

Gray yesterday went 11 innings against the Washington Senators to score a 7-to-6 victory over Garland Braxton.

Gray has started seven games for the Browns and has finished five of them, his record being six victories and one defeat.

DOUDS HASN'T QUIT W.-J.

ROCHESTER, Pa., May 7.—Forrest (Jap) Douds, star tackle on the Washington and Jefferson College football team last year, denies the report that he has dropped out of school and that he will not be in the fold of Coach Andy Kerr next fall. At present Douds is at his home in Rochester where he was called two weeks ago by the serious illness of his father, Frank Douds. The latter has been confined to his bed for several weeks and several times has been near death.

The President star expressed his intentions of staying with his father until he has recovered. However, he will enroll at the summer school session at Wash-Jeff to make up his studies and will then be eligible for varsity competition next fall.

Presidents Show Power

By JESS CARVER.

A PERFORMANCE in the stirring art of picking 'em up and laying 'em down, one that has not been approached by any runner in track and field competition so far this year and will stand up with the best achievments of the past decade, was turned in by Ken Webecan, Pitt's Negro flyer in the dual meet at Morgantown Saturday afternoon.

Webecan has always been noted as a fine runner, but has usually confined his activities on the track to the century and furlong races. Saturday, however, he stepped out of one character into a greater one by winning, in addition to the two shorter races, the gruelling quarter-mile.

It would not be of such startling note had he been content to win the races in just any sort of time. That would have been fine in itself, of course, but the way in which Webecan stepped to win the events at Morgantown, running the 100 in 9 4-5, the 220 in 21 4-5 and the 440 in 50 1-5 seconds, indicates that Coach Frank Shea has developed a dash man of topmost ability.

Webecan's running was easily the feature of the meet, and outshone even Capt. Gibby Welch's victories in the shot, discus, javelin and his second place in the broad jump. It was an afternoon's work that is likely to stand out in glowing relief for the remainder of the track season, though Webby may better his records when he runs in the Big Four meet in the Stadium here two weeks hence.

Marks made in the Pitt-West Virginia meet, with the exception of the two-mile, 220-yard hurdles, the discus and the high jump, were all superior to those turned in at the other two tri-state district dual meets between Tech and Geneva at Beaver Falls and Wash-Jeff and Bethany at Bethany.

NEW JAVELIN MARK

Buvinger's time in the 880 was 2:01 1-5, a very good mark. Maxwell of West Virginia ran the 120-yard high hurdles in 15 2-5, Gwinn heaved the hammer 157 feet, 6 inches. Pickard vaulted 11 feet 9 inches to win the event with ease. Welch hurled the javeline 182 feet 2 inches, to break his own Tri-State record of 179 feet 10 inches. This mark, the old one, was also eclipsed by Len Friedman of Geneva when he recorded a mark of 181 feet at Beaver Falls.

Taylor of West Virginia leaped 22 feet, 4½ inches in the broad jump for the best mark of the day. Welch put the shot 43 feet 10 inches to lead all contestants in that event.

In the two-mile run at the Geneva-Tech meet, Solin of the Tartans raced over the distance in 10:30 4-5, making the best time of any of the boys. Smith of Wash-Jeff was clocked at 27 3-5 in the 220-yard hurdles at Bethany. Bill Amos was good for 141 feet 3 inches in the discus and Slater of Wash-Jeff established himself as a possible district high jump champion by clearing 5 feet 9 inches against Bethany.

To return to a discussion of Webecan's great running, let it be known that Webby had to take up the added burden of the quarter-mile when Pete Bowen was lost to the team. Bowen had been counted upon heavily for the 220 and 440. They were figuring on Web to win the 100 and to run either one or two in the furlong event. Now that he has displayed unmistakable evidenve of being a real quarter-miler, it may be that Coach Shea will relieve him of duty as a 100-yard man, allowing the burden of that race to fall upon the capable legs of Jim McCullough and have Webecan concentrate on the other two races.

MAY BREAK RECORD

"Tomorrow afternoon, so I understand, Webecan will make an attempt to lower the tri-state 220-yard record of 21 3-5, which is held by Kelly of Carnegie Tech and which was set in 1922. The Panthers meet Tech in the only home dual meet of the schedule on the Pitt stadium. He came within 1-5 of a second of equalling it against West Virginia, and if he does not have to run in the 100, stands a fair chance of cracking the old mark.

SHOT RECORD BROKEN

The boys have the world shot-put record punch goofy!

A week ago, John Kuck shattered the long standing 51-foot mark, made by Ralph Rose, of Michigan, years and years ago, when he put the 16-pound iron ball 51 feet, ½ inch. Then on Saturday, he again broke the record with a heave of 51 feet, 1½ inches.

After that performance, John went home to supper and the sweet dreams that always accompany the breaking of a shot-put record. Imagine his embarrassment when he awoke yesterday morning to find out that a gent named Hirschfield, a German, had heaved the old ball 51 feet 5½ inches, over in Germany.

Hirschfield, provided everything was on the up and up, and that the shot didn't have a cork center or wasn't one of those old National League lively balls or didn't roll the last 10 feet, looks like a sure bet to win the event in the Olympics.

ETCHEBASTER ADVANCES TOWARD WORLD TITLE

LONDON, May 7.—(AP.)—Pierre Etchebaster, Frenchman who recently won the American Court Tennis Championship, today advanced a long step toward winning the world's title by defeating George Covey, the champion, three sets to one in the opening play of the series.

The scores were: 6-0, 2-6, 6-1, 6-0. Four more sets will be played Wednesday and Etchebaster can take the championship by winning them all. Otherwise the issue will go over until Saturday for decision.

Etchebaster won the American title by defeating Jock Soutar in Philadelphia last January.

Johnstown, the Braves topped the General Tires of Youngstown by a 14-1 score. Gene Ghales, former Pitt star, led the attack for the Tires with three safe hits. Dick Goldberg, a member of last year's champion Pitt football team, played a fine game at first base and connected for a clean hit, a single.

The offensive uncorked by the home team in the past week is a source of pleasure to the supporters of the club. In view of the poor showing of the Pirates in the spring training period and in the earlier days of the race, the fans were beginning to show alarm. Now that the team is hitting furiously in co-operation with effective twirling there is a right-about-face change in the demeanor of the populace.

stop for us. I knew nobody had reached first and I remarked to Eddie that we would have a perfect game if we could get Bassler out. Eddie turned me around to the box and we retired the batter."

Mulligan's views of the contest are just as interesting as those of the no-hit hero.

"Robbie was wonderful that day," Eddie said. "The crowd knew what was going on, and, although we were playing in hostile territory, the fans of Detroit broke onto the field and carried him off on their shoulders.

"Bassler was a left-field hitter and I plainly remember what he did when he came up with nothing but himself between Charley and a perfect game.

"The pinch-hitter did get hold of a couple of hard drives, but both were foul down the left field line and they were not very close to the marker. Finally Robbie made him hoist a fly to Bib Falk, our left fielder, and the masterpiece was complete.

"Sure, I recall Charley coming over to me when Bassler was at the plate. He said something about what it meant if we got Bassler out. I fold him to regard Johnny just the same as any other batter.

"And I remember also that I did not have a single chance at short in the game."

last few rounds I had him well under control. He still was dangerous, however, and, with the fight safely won, I took no chances of trying to finish him. I might have accomplished that purpose by bearing down a bit, but at the same time would have left myself open to some hefty return shots. He is a dangerous fellow and I have to laugh now when I think back how I almost fell for that bad right hand stuff."

I ASKED Sandy what the chances were of his joining Gene Tunney's staff of sparring partners in the champion's preparation for his bout with Tom Heeney in July, inasmuch as Sandy's manager, Jimmy Bronson, was Gene's chief second in both of the latter's fights with Jack Dempsey and likely will fill that role again against Heeney.

"Not so good, I'm afraid," Sandy replied. "You see, Gene will want to work out against fellows whose style closely resembles that of the plodding Heeney and he won't have much need for any shifty boxers in camp. And, besides, you will remember that Gene smashed his right hand on my head when he was training to box Johnny Risko in Cleveland several years ago and had to go into the ring crippled against the Clevelander and had a rough time of it."

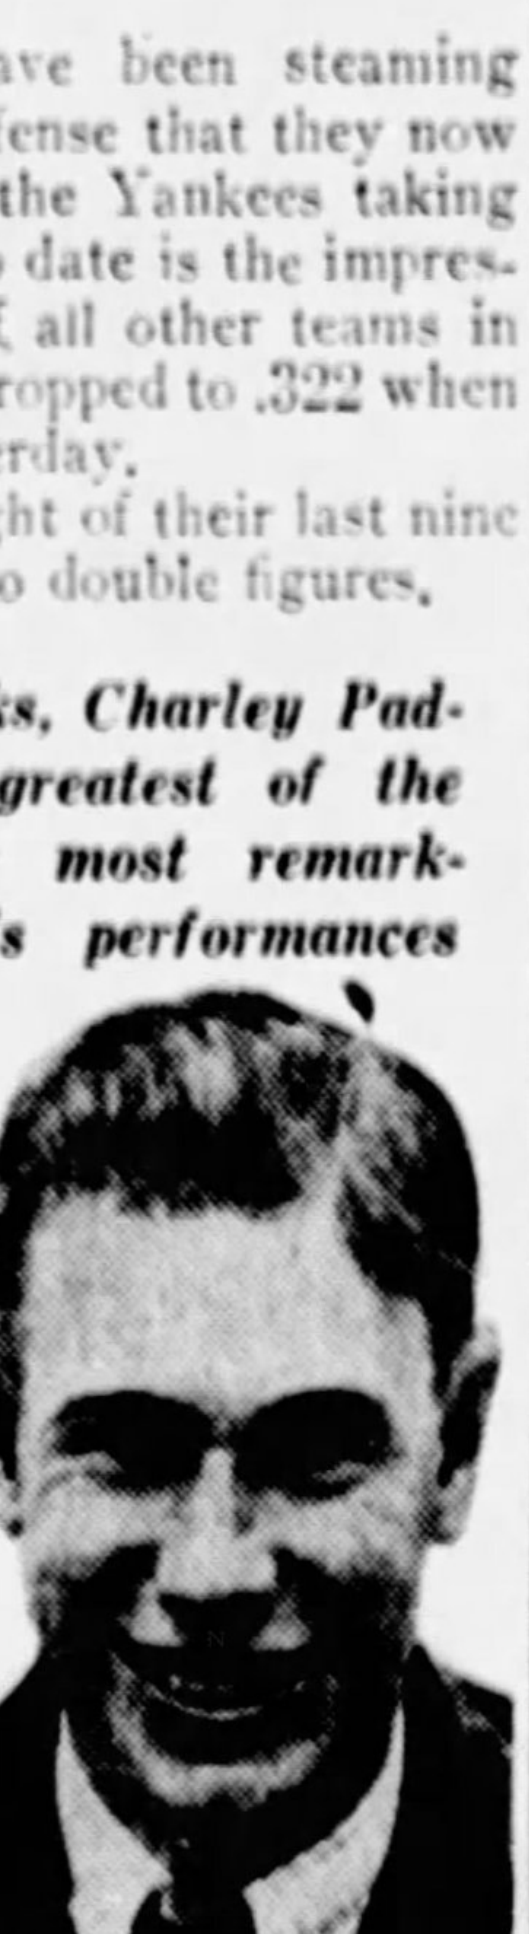
indicates they are already feeling the beneficial effects of morning batting practice.

IN the six games, the Bucs made no fewer than 70 hits and scored 44 runs in 217 times at bat, which means 14 hits and more than seven runs per game, on an average. The club batting average for the week was .415.

AS a matter of fact, the Buccaneers have been steaming along at such a terrific clip on the offense that they now lead both major leagues in batting, even the Yankees taking their dust. The Rovers club average up to date is the impressive one of .330, hich puts them ahead of all other teams in both circuits, including the Yankees, who dropped to .322 when they were held to six hits in Chicago yesterday.

In all of their last six games, and in eight of their last nine games, Pittsburgh's base hits have run into double figures.

IN the matter of athletic come-backs, Charley Paddock looms up not only as the greatest of the present year, but as one of the most remarkable of any other age. Paddock's performances in the West some time ago in a sense gave notice of what was coming, but even at that the followers of track sports were not prepared for the amazing exhibition that the coast flyer gave in Philadelphia Saturday, when he ran 175 yards in new world's record time of 17 2-5 seconds under conditions that seemed certain to slow him up. Paddock himself estimates that he lost a fifth of a second, or perhaps two-fifths, when he swerved from the falling wall and leaped over persons who had fallen in his path. And it must be borne in mind that Paddock has been doing this sort of thing for a decade, and is still cracking records after records to which "finis" would have been written long ago for most athletes. How can such a super sprinter be kept off America's Olympic team this year, even though he has already competed twice in the big international carnivals—at Antwerp in 1920 and at Paris in 1924?



Charley Paddock.

ARMY-NOTRE DAME GAME GOES TO YANK STADIUM

NEW YORK, May 7.—(INS.)—The Notre Dame-Army football game, one of the outstanding classics of the gridiron season, will be played at the Yankee Stadium here on November 10 next, it was announced by E. G. Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees.

This will be the fourth year in succession that the Army-Notre Dame struggle will have been held at the stadium. Each year the demand for tickets had been enormous and last fall more than three times the number of people applied than could be accommodated.

The Yankee stadium next fall will have a seating capacity in excess of 80,000.

CHILLY SAUCE

BY CHILLY DOYLE

IT is probable that Donie Bush will have Kremer, Grimes, Hill and Miljus ready to shoot at the Giants, with the prospect that Joe Dawson may horn into one of the battles, Joe has won three games and he is hitting the ball like a star sticker.

Carmen Hill was bothered with his back after his recent victory over the Cubs. He was advised to lay off for several days, but it is thought that the Corry giant will be in shape to face his former mates. The Giants also will see an ex-buddie on the slab against them when Grimes flips his spitter.

SO Vic Aldridge finally took his pen in hand and wrote his name on the important paper. The Hoosier Schoolmaster is due in Pittsburgh tomorrow with the remainder of the circus. Ringmaster McGraw would provide a great attraction if he were to throw Victor at the Pirates the same day that Grimes faces the Manhattan men, but Aldridge is hardly ready to go the route so early, although reports have him in good shape.

Many fans will be disappointed in the event that sickness keeps Andy Cohen out of the impending series. Here is a young man who has kicked up a lot of fuss. Andy, with Frank O'Doul, added much to the flavor of an already colorful team. The second-sacker went down with "flu" while the boys' hero of the Coast turned an ankle about two weeks' ago.

McGRAW had seven sick or injured players out of action in Cincinnati. The New Yorkers finish with the Reds today. They have lost two of the three games played. Jimmy Reese is playing first base in place of the ailing Terry. With Terry and O'Doul out, McGraw has two terrific swatters where they cannot help him.

Bruce Flowers and Sid Barbarian box in New York tonight. George Courtney boxes Red Chian at Chicago.

Forbes

No Definite Trade Trend. Misgivings Over Stocks.

By B. C. FORBES

INDUSTRY and business are moving along unspectacularly. Sensations enough are being supplied by the stock market.

Often by May business develops a very distinct trend. This year things are moving along very much as they did during the first quarter of the year. That is to say, a few industries—notably steel, building and automobiles—have exhibited very pronounced activity, but most others are inclined to be sluggish. So is retail trade on the whole, although this is attributed in a good many sections to unseasonable weather.

One feature has been an almost general rise in agricultural products, today grains, cotton and farm animals are at levels which have taken some of the edge off the demand for political aid for agriculture.

Meanwhile, our railroads are not faring as well as they did one year ago or two years ago. Both volume of traffic and net earnings are appreciably lower. Only part of the blame can be allocated to the trouble in the soft coal industry. In fact, railway traffic so far this year has been the lightest for any year since 1924.

Less is heard about unemployment. Detroit has become the banner city in adding to its army of workers. A great deal remains to be done, however, in the way of finding employment for America's surplus workers.

AVERAGE quotations on the New York Stock Exchange were carried to a new peak on Friday because, it was naively explained, Wall Street was assured of another week of a 4 per cent bank rate at New York!

The fact that brokers' loans again expanded extraordinarily was brushed aside as of no significance whatsoever. That the loss of gold on the present movement is nearing $350,000,000 is not thought worth a moment's consideration by those in charge of the stock market. What is it to them that the Federal Reserve Board has twice raised the rediscount rate at various centers and is now throwing government securities on the market simultaneously with expanding demand for re-discounts?

Not so long ago we were told that if brokers' loans reached four billions, then it would be time to call a halt. Now that brokers' loans are close to the five billion mark, the impression sought to be created is that the amount of brokers' loans, no matter how great, is a matter of very little importance. To such depths has "reasoning" been reduced by speculative Wall Street.

ON THIS score, this diplomatic note of warning is sounded by the always-cautious National City Bank of New York:

"An important amount of money has come into the call or short time loan market from corporations by reason of slackening business. It is there to make earnings until it is needed elsewhere, and the same may be said of considerable country bank money. It will be prudent policy to recognize that these funds will not be permanently available in the New York market, and to take account of what effects its withdrawal may have. On the other hand if business should fall off still more, additional funds will come here, but in that event it will be prudent to consider what the effects of poorer business may be upon market prices."

It further observes that the Federal reserve authorities "cannot be expected to view a continuing expansion of their credit with anything but concern, and adds:

"The problem of the reserve banks is not that of forcing liquidation, but of preventing a continued draft upon their reserves, and in this they are entitled to co-operation."

WALL Street notoriously goes to extremes. Never before has it carried the marking up of stocks so far nor has it ever before dared to borrow such unheard of sums.

It is earnestly to be hoped that, when the turn comes, Wall Street will not fly to the other extreme.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Hydro-Electric Securities.

Election of Sir Herbert Holt as chairman of the Hydro-Electric Securities Corporation of Montreal was announced today by Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian capitalist and president. J. H. Gundy, president of Wood, Gundy & Co.; S. Godin, Jr., of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company, and Prentis N. Gray, president of J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, has been elected directors. Loewenstein disclosed that the corporation's funds have been invested in proportion of 1 per cent in France, 2 per cent in Italy and 97 per cent in the United States, the latter holdings in public utility companies having a present market value of $40,000,000. The corporation, which, Loewenstein said would soon have at its disposal capital of about $57,000,000, will have unsold in its treasury some $30,000,000 in preference A stock and 500,000 shares of common, which may be issued.

Stocks Outstripping Business.

Brokers' loans are nearing the $5,000,000,000 level so confidently forecast by W. C. Durant and other noted bulls. Reserve Bank officials advise caution, but brokers and market operators have convinced their clients there is no danger. They point out that more than $12,500,000,000 securities were listed on the exchange in April and estimate that total securities borrowed on amount to over $200,000,000,000 in value. So, they argue, $5,000,000,000 loans is not a big percentage. The Reserve feels the rate of increase and not the total is the important feature, and that the accompanying increase in stock values has put the market too far ahead of business.

Public in the Saddle.

The public is "running away with the market" in the opinion of many experienced market observers, and when such conditions develop it is generally dangerous to go against the trend, especially in the present case when the buyers are so well fortified with cash and are either taking their stocks outright or margining them down to a level where an ordinary shake-out is of no avail. On the whole, however, those who have spent a lifetime in Wall Street refuse to believe that the "lambs" will take any more money out of this market than from previous ones. "Headache Day" seems dim and distant, but the old-timers say it will come eventually, and when it does come it will come with shocking suddenness.

The "New Era."

"A new era" is the favored cry of the bulls as they stress the "international aspects" of the market. "You can't be big unless you play big," is another of their fond expressions, meaning that New York cannot be the financial capital of the world unless it is permitted to make the necessary huge expansion in its operations and provided with the funds needed. There is none in the Federal Reserve who does not recognize the changed aspects of our market. But they realize also the extent of danger in going ahead too rapidly. As the international activities of our market increase the necessary funds will be forthcoming, but just at present the stock market appears to be considerably ahead of all such developments.

Dollar Jump in Cotton.

Cotton advanced $1 a bale at the opening on reports of cold rains in the eastern belt over Sunday. Part of the advance was attributed by active covering by those who had gone over the week-end on expectations of favorable weather. Liverpool was credited with buying here on the strength of the market there. The advance attracted profit-taking and some southern selling, but it was more than offset by active demand. Reports of increased cloth sales in the New York market attracted favorable comment.

Wyman Speeds Up Curb Ticker.

Speedier curb ticker service was inaugurated here today by the Wyman News Bureau. Traders were kept in closer touch with the curb transactions through installation of a new system whereby quotations are relayed by Marshall machine direct from the floor of the New York Curb Exchange to the Wyman offices here and transmitted instantaneously to the curb tickers in the various brokerage offices. A check of the new system this morning showed that quotations were printed on the local tickers within two seconds of their receipt from the floor of the curb. Previous method of transmission was by Morse telegraph code to a telegraph operator here who copied the sales, which were then sent over the local system by a ticker operator.

Steel as a Leader.

Popularity of United States Steel common as a leader cannot be questioned, and ability of that stock to score a good advance always has brought buying into the general list. Because of this fact, it is believed Steel common may be taken in hand by the bulls when other stocks need increased selling. Operations of the steel plants of the country have maintained a fairly steady rate in recent weeks, and while some let-down in activities is likely in the near future, it is expected to be gradual and less than normal for this season of the year, because customers are still anxious for deliveries on their contracts, and have continued to specify freely.

Youngstown Operations.

Steel operations in the Youngstown area are holding to schedules of recent weeks, with a few exceptions. Ninety-nine of 121 sheet mills are rolling. Corn Products.

Corn Products has not shared proportionately in the advances of late, despite optimistic opinions on the outlook for this company. Because of liberal treatment of stockholders in the past there is a belief in many quarters that an extra dividend of 50 cents a share may be declared at the June meeting. At that time last year 25 cents extra was paid. Continuation of favorable operations during the remaining months of the year probably would result in a larger extra payment next December, according to these views.

BUYING ORDERS POUR INTO EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP.)—Buying orders poured into the stock market from all sections of the country today and prices leaped upward in impressive fashion. Extreme gains in the active issues ranged from 2 to nearly 15 points, with blocks of 5,000 to 20,000 shares appearing on the tape at frequent intervals. So great was the accumulation of orders that the ticker fell nearly 45 minutes behind the market by early afternoon.

There were no new developments over the week-end to explain the tremendous volume of buying. The brisk demand for such high grade issues as American Telephone, International Telephone, American Bank Note, American Can, Canadian Pacific and Jersey Central, all of which advanced 3 to 12 points to new peak prices, was widely construed as an indication of a large investment demand. Operations by powerful speculative pools stimulated the demand for a large flock of non-dividend paying shares, the rise in which was associated with all sorts of merger and dividend rumors.

Banks called about $15,000,000 in loans by early afternoon, but there appeared to be a large surplus of funds available at the renewal rate of 5 per cent on call loans.

Short covering accelerated the rise in many specialties, particularly those in which the floating supply was small. Brokers reported that the recent efforts of federal reserve authorities to curb speculation had resulted in the building up of a large short interest, but the public demand for stocks was so large that many timid "bears" ran to cover on the appearance of strong buying support for supposedly over-priced shares.

Electric Auto-Lite soared nearly 14 points to a new peak at 203⅝. American Bank Note extended its gain to nearly 9 points by touching 137. Canadian Pacific climbed 7⅛ points to 221, the highest price in 12 years, and Jersey Central sold at 275 for the first time since 1912. General Motors ran into heavy profit-taking, after creating a new peak at 210, but held within a few points of that level. Gains of 2 to 5 points were scattered throughout the list.

Total sales crossed the 2,500,000 share mark before the end of the third hour.

The closing was strong. New favorites loomed up in late dealings, including the American Tobacco, International Combustion Engineering, Purity Baking and Vanadium Steel shares, in which advances ran from 4 to 7 points. The airplane stocks took a new flight into higher territory and there was further accumulation of "blue chips," Dupont selling above 400. Total sales approximated 4,500,000 shares.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, May 7.—Wheat scored material fresh upturns in price early today, owing mostly to persistent dry cold weather West and Southwest. Offerings were light, but increased on the bulges. Opening at ⅝c to 1⅛c advance, wheat fluctuated rapidly at near to the initial range. Corn, oats and provisions average higher also, with corn starting ¼c to 1c up, and subsequently continuing firm.

In addition to unfavorable weather for winter wheat west and southwest, bear traders had to face predictions which were current today that the government crop report this week would furnish new incentives to the buying side of the market. Moreover, the amount of wheat on ocean passage today showed a decided falling-off, both as compared with a week ago and a year back.

On the other hand, some exceptionally favorable crop reports were at hand today, and this in particular was the case regarding Kansas, the banner wheat state. A leading Chicago expert telegraphing from Sylvia, Kans., said that lots of wheat in that section is now knee-high and of good stand and color, with moisture nearly ample to mature the crop. He added that unless some unforseen calamity occurs, Kansas will raise a crop considerably above average.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The raw sugar market was unchanged early today. A sale was confirmed late last week of 25,000 bags of Cuban to an operator for second half May shipment at 4.52c, representing an advance of 1-32c. While this was the general asking price this morning, some nearby duty free sugars were available at 1-32c less or 4.49c delivered.

With the exception of the present May delivery, which was 2 points lower under liquidation as the result of the circulation of five notices raw sugar futures were steady, reflecting the steadiness of the spot market. Prices at one time showed advances of 1 to 2 points on covering and some buying by trade interests, but there was enough realizing to supply the demand and in the late forenoon reactions followed, with midday prices about net unchanged. Trading was of small proportions and the trade at large was inclined to limit operations and await developments in the spot market.

The refined market was unchanged at 5.95@6.00c for fine granulated, with new business light.

STD. SANITARY FIRMS UP

Trading was active and prices were firm at the opening of the new week on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange with Lone Star Gas holding its position at the head of the list and scoring a first-hour's gain of a full point over last week's final quotation.

There was a fairly heavy turnover in Lone Star on the New York curb also where the price was maintained at a large fraction above the prevailing figures here. Bulls on the stock continued to talk of the fine earnings for the first quarter, said to equal about $2 a share on the stock, and insisted that this alone warrants high prices for the shares regardless of what developments may take place in connection with the rumored Lone Star-Columbia Gas merger.

The miscellaneous list was firm. United Engineering was 1¼ points up on the initial sales at 49, while Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt, Armstrong Cork and Union Steel Castings were practically unchanged.

May Drug was active on a rising market selling up to the best level since the shares were listed. Gossip in the Street was to the effect that the May chain will be merged into one of the large national drug store combinations later on.

In the afternoon market Lone Star Gas sagged off more than a point from the early high price as selling, attracted by the rise, found takers inclined to lower their bids under the offerings. However, outside demand came in and strengthened the stock after it had dipped under 53.

Standard Sanitary continued in good demand all day. Its price range was narrow, but the trend was upward, with a comparatively small amount of stock coming out on the rise.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, May 7.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 20 to 29 points on rather active buying inspired by a report of cold rains in the eastern belt and relatively firm Liverpool cables.

Prices sold up to 21.17c for May and 20.91c for October, or about 28 to 40 points above Saturday's closing quotations, but this advance met some selling for Liverpool and New Orleans account as well as realizing or liquidation. Offerings caused reactions of several points after initial demand had been supplied, but active months showed net advances of 20 to 30 points by the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported continental buying and trade calling in Liverpool and improved demand for cotton cloths from India.

The reaction from the opening advance carried the market off to 21.05 for May and 20.72 for October, or about 20 points from the high level of the morning and within 16 to 20 points of Saturday's closing quotations. Expectations that the rains would pass out to sea following some further precipitation in the Carolinas and Georgia probably inspired realizing, but the dip brought in some buying for trade or commission house account and prices steadied up again late in the forenoon. At midday the market was quiet with active months 23 to 32 points net higher.

PITTSBURGHER SAVES TWO

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., May 7.—A Pittsburgh dentist, Dr. Michael Conti, stood revealed today as the rescuer who prevented the Susquehanna's Saturday night toll from being five instead of three persons.

While crossing the river in an open boat at Hyner, about 18 miles from here, Mrs. Margaret Pisano, 34, of Renovo, and Mrs. George Schwoyer, 28, and 4-year-old daughter, Gladys, of Williamsport, were drowned when the craft sprung a leak and sank in the swiftly flowing current.

The boat also contained James Conti and Margaret Kerns. They were rescued by Dr. Conti, who put out in a boat from the opposite shore.

The five people were attending a cabin party given by the Conti brothers and were crossing the river to take a train for their homes.

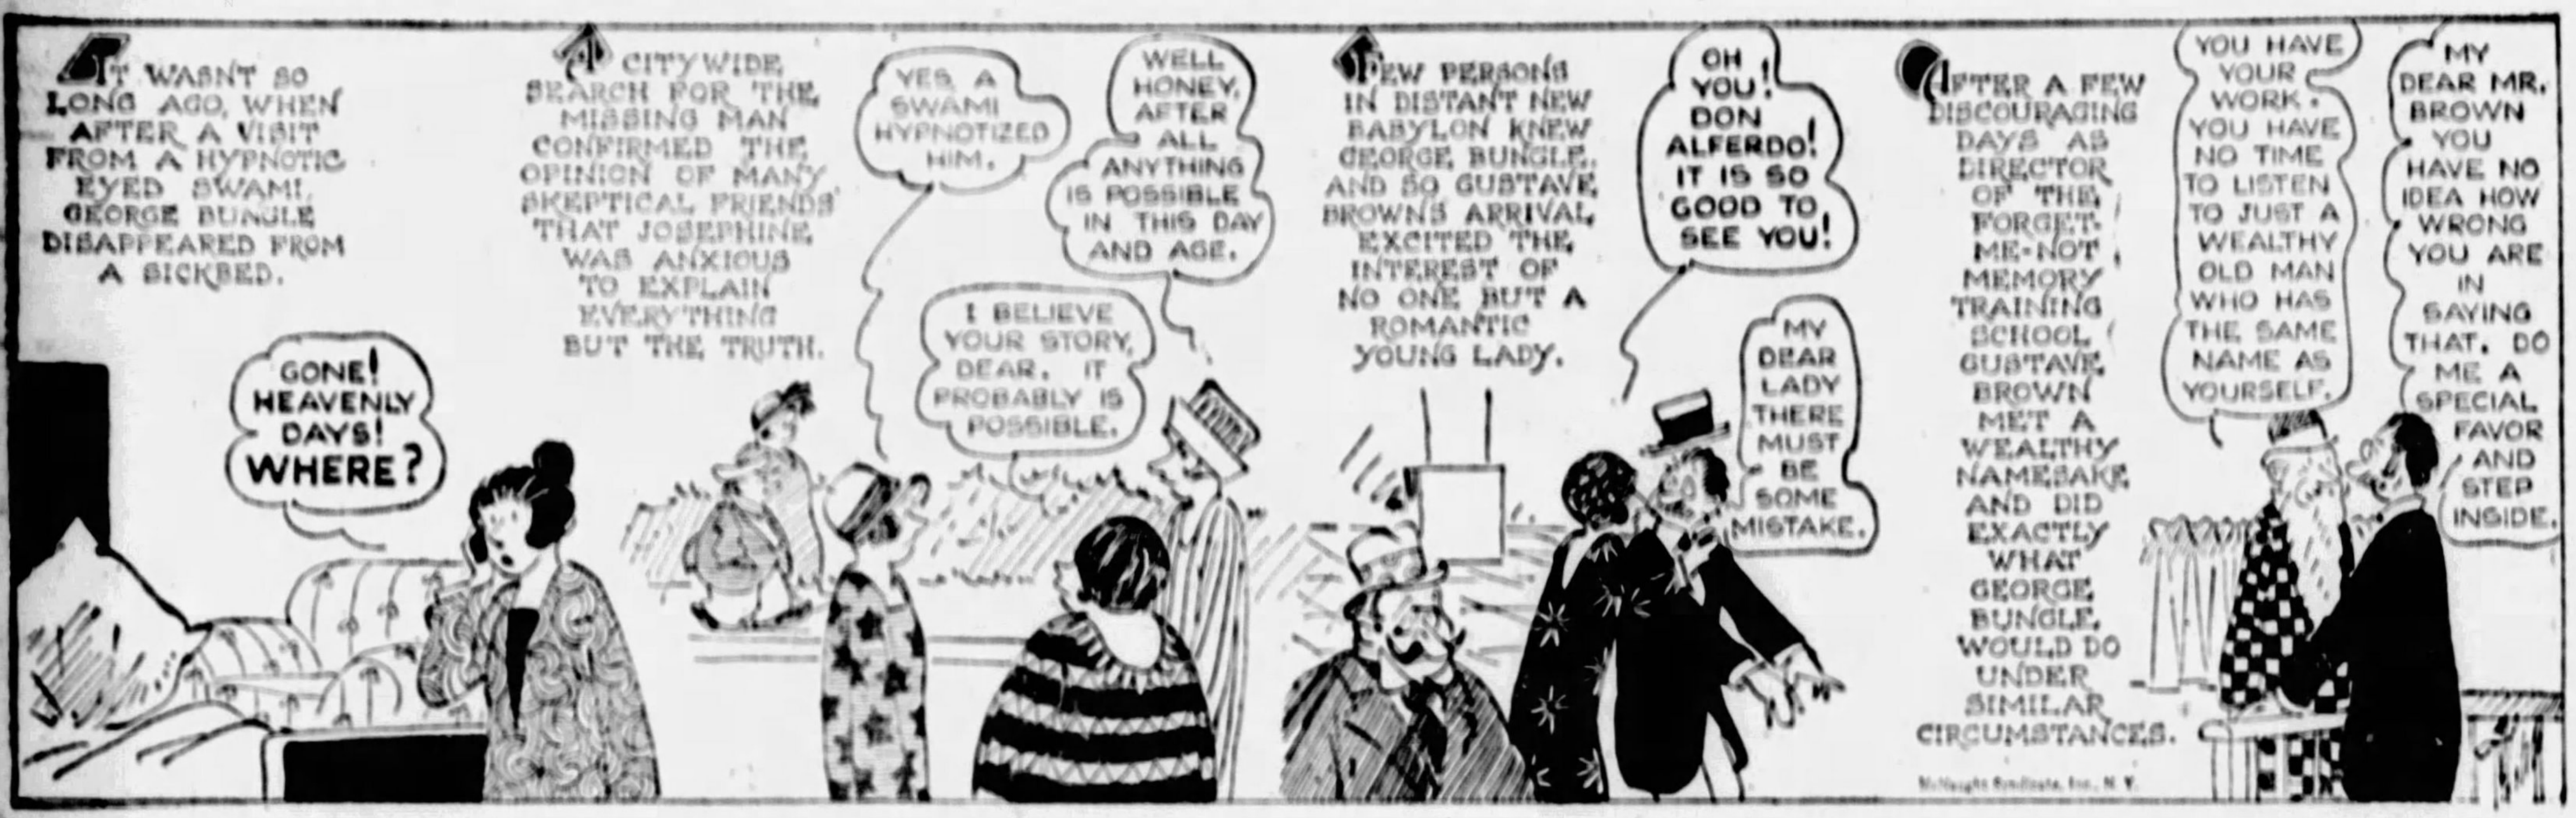
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Yesterday and Today



IT WASN'T SO LONG AGO, WHEN AFTER A VISIT FROM A HYPNOTIC EYED SWAMI, GEORGE BUNGLE DISAPPEARED FROM A SICKBED.
GONE! HEAVENLY DAYS! WHERE?
A CITYWIDE SEARCH FOR THE MISSING MAN CONFIRMED THE OPINION OF MANY SKEPTICAL FRIENDS THAT JOSEPHINE WAS ANXIOUS TO EXPLAIN EVERYTHING BUT THE TRUTH.
YES, A SWAMI HYPNOTIZED HIM.
WELL HONEY, AFTER ALL ANYTHING IS POSSIBLE IN THIS DAY AND AGE.
I BELIEVE YOUR STORY, DEAR. IT PROBABLY IS POSSIBLE.
FEW PERSONS IN DISTANT NEW BABYLON KNEW GEORGE BUNGLE, AND SO GUSTAVE BROWN'S ARRIVAL EXCITED THE INTEREST OF NO ONE BUT A ROMANTIC YOUNG LADY.
OH YOU! DON ALFERDO! IT IS SO GOOD TO SEE YOU!
MY DEAR LADY THERE MUST BE SOME MISTAKE.
AFTER A FEW DISCOURAGING DAYS AS DIRECTOR OF THE FORGET-ME-NOT MEMORY TRAINING SCHOOL, GUSTAVE BROWN MET A WEALTHY NAMESAKE AND DID EXACTLY WHAT GEORGE BUNGLE WOULD DO UNDER SIMILAR CIRCUMSTANCES.
YOU HAVE YOUR WORK. YOU HAVE NO TIME TO LISTEN TO JUST A WEALTHY OLD MAN WHO HAS THE SAME NAME AS YOURSELF.
MY DEAR MR. BROWN YOU HAVE NO IDEA HOW WRONG YOU ARE IN SAYING THAT. DO ME A SPECIAL FAVOR AND STEP INSIDE.

What Would You Not Give For

The Secret of Her Popularity

Since Childhood Days Miss Gittlebaum Has Read but One Newspaper—The Sun-Tele.

No wonder she's popular! Wherever she goes, her charming personality wins a host of admiring friends.

Much of Miss Eunice Gittlebaum's charm is due to her remarkable diversity of conversation.

Miss Gittlebaum tells us she has memorized every word in The Sun-Tele for months.

That is her secret.

If she finds herself with a business man (and who does not find oneself with a business man occasionally?) she can quote the stock market tables.

For some she recites an installment from a snappy serial. Others prefer news of the tides, a vital statistic or two... or perhaps a divorce court tidbit.

Won't you let our Mr. Corrigan call upon you—and just explain? Or just jot your name on a check and we will send you a sample bale in a plain truck to look over in the privacy of your home.

Our Calendar

Movement to Make It Simpler Is Gaining Force

The campaign for a simpler calendar is gaining headway. The United States Chamber of Commerce has named a strong committee to report upon its scientific and legal aspects. The Pan-American Conference at Havana recommended that member nations name similar committees so as to be ready for an international conference on the subject. A number of European nations already have such studies in progress.

Large business organizations in the United States are increasingly using the thirteen-month calendar in their own accounting because of its manifest advantages. It permits exact comparison of business activities by months, avoiding the variation in number of days among the months of our twelve-month calendar.

It thus greatly simplifies accounting. And when made legal and universal, it will be to the further advantage of business everywhere by anchoring the now floating holidays and insuring regularity of employment.

There is no argument against it except the difficulty of changing a long fixed habit. If difficulties were allowed to halt progress, mankind would be in a bad way.

Economy

Twenty-eight of our states authorize the Governor either to veto items in appropriation bills or to control the spending through a budget system.

This method has been found a wholesome check upon legislative carelessness or log-rolling. A watchdog at the door of the treasury is a necessity of every business. The public business is not an exception. A vetoed item really needed can always be repassed.

Representative Hastings, of Oklahoma, has proposed an amendment to the Federal Constitution clothing the President with similar power. It would be a sensible thing to do, and it would save many wasted dollars.

Praise Coolidge!

Good News for 5,000,000 Americans.

It is said President Coolidge will approve the proposal to abolish the Federal automobile tax. That is welcome news to 5,000,000 Americans, big and little, planning to buy a new car.

The automobile is no more a luxury to man than fins to a fish or wings to a bird. The man with no automobile is a finless fish and a wingless bird. Get your car.

Men Will Gamble

Even in Civil War and Death

GREYHOUNDS GOING TO CHINA TO RACE.

Here you see a Chinese gentleman with three racing hounds bought in England.

The craze for betting on greyhound racing has spread throughout Great Britain like wildfire.

In Ireland the HORSE races are neglected in favor of DOG races, which can be seen cheaply, and at night after working hours.

In London as many as 100,000 have paid admission to watch and bet on the "long dogs."

Many men have been changed from hard workers into fools and gamblers by this latest craze. Tens of millions of pounds of hard-earned money have been transferred from the pockets of workers to the pockets of professional gamblers.

This picture, showing a Chinese taking hounds to China to be used as gambling machinery there, is particularly interesting.

China is torn by civil war, corpses lie in the streets, cities raise armies against each other.

Still, men find time to watch races and gamble.

Gambling, a perverted form of ambition, seems born in the human race.

The early savage would gamble away horse, dog, tent, wife and his clothes.

Many American fools on the racetrack give a fairly good imitation of that early gambling savage.

It takes a mind of some strength to resist temptation and stick to a plan for EARNING independence.

Any fool can bet, AND USUALLY DOES.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Christian Era

"Under the heading 'Memorable Dates' I read the following: 'B. C. 4, birth of Jesus Christ; A. D. 29, the Crucifixion.' Please explain why Christ was not born in the year A. D. 1, and died in the year A. D. 33.—D. K., U. S. Marine Corps Headquarters, Washington."

THE Christian era was intended to begin with the actual date of the birth, or the incarnation, of Christ. But to fix that date in the frame of world times, it was necessary to know when the incarnation took place with reference to the course of general events. The world had been populated, and great world events had occurred, thousands of years before Christ was born.

The early Christians, it is said, wishing to separate themselves and the pagan world, related the date of the incarnation to that of the creation of the world. This would have been all right if the date of creation had been certainly established. But, in fact, the Jewish scriptures threw no sure light on the question, and the various reckonings differed widely, because they rested on "impossible and inconsistent genealogies," and not on any scientific facts or verifiable data and monuments.

As many as 200 different calculations of the date of the Creation are said to have been made before the Christian era was calculated on a different basis, in the middle of the sixth century, by Dionysius Exiguus, a Roman monk, who using the Greek "Olympiads" and the Roman "A. U. C." (Ab Urbis Conditae—"from Rome's foundation") for comparison, made the year 1 of his Christian era correspond with the fourth year of the 194th Olympiad and with the year 753 A. U. C.

Neither the era A. U. C. nor that of the Olympiads was known with certainty, but since both ran far back of the time of Christ's birth and had been long accepted as historic guide-posts, they served the purpose that Dionysius had in view. His system was immediately adopted in Italy, but it did not spread through western Europe and the British Isles until the eighth and ninth centuries. It became known as the Era of the Incarnation, also called the Vulgar or Common Era, its symbol being the letters A. D. (Anno Domini—"In the Year of Our Lord").

But modern studies in archaeology and history have led to the conclusion that Dionysius was in error in his calculations to the extent of at least four years, and that in using the Era of the Foundation of Rome for a measure he fixed the incarnation four years too late, so that, if his system is retained, the date of Christ's birth must be, B. C. 4, instead of A. D. 1.

Some calculations even ascribe as much as six or seven years error to the Dionysion era. Dr. C. F. Deems calculated that it should fall upon A. U. C. 747 instead of 753. This would make it correspond with the 187th Olympiad. Of course the years WITHIN the Christian Era are not affected by these alterations of its beginning as measured by other eras, so that the length of Christ's life remains the same, notwithstanding the uncertainty as to the precise point in world history upon which it fell.

Notable

IF LESS dramatic than the flight of the Bremen, the feat of the French pilots, Costes and Lebrix, in sailing 35,000 miles over two continents and one ocean, and reaching Paris from Tokio in seven days, is nevertheless notable.

They would no doubt have spanned the Pacific also if nature had supplied it with better landing fields.

When seadromes are proved, this omission of nature can be corrected.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Are You Qualified?

ARE you getting tired of your old home town?

Do you want to get out where the lights are brighter and more numerous?

How do you think you would fare, where competition is keen and ability above the ordinary is required?

What can you do in an exceptional way?

Are you far above the average in your particular line?

If not, better stay where you are.

Out in the busy, hustling world, there is little demand for the person of ordinary talent.

Stay where you are known and where there are not so many others who are so much better.

On the other hand, if you are unusually gifted, and you cannot find the opportunities you need to develop your gift, you should go where the chances are better.

Then when you are established, with ability beyond the ordinary and in places where your gifts are essential, don't expect to command immediate recognition, with its emoluments.

First procure opportunity to display your wares, and it may take you some little time to reach the discerning eye and ear, at that.

The Rhyming Optimist

Willow Leaves

THE tenderness of robin's note at morn I can forego,
With all the merry cadences of fragrant April rain,
And peach trees' cloud of rosy bloom, the pear boughs touched with snow,
But I must see the willow leaves come peeping out again!

The willow leaves of tender green are like the soul of Spring,
So vivid and so fresh are they against the turquoise haze;
I can forego the nestling doves, the tulips blossoming,
If only slender willow leaves may greet my longing gaze.

My Love and I walked once in spring where singing waters strayed,
He wove a wreath of willow leaves to crown me as his queen;
I can forego the violets that gladden every glade,
But I must glimpse new willow leaves that wave their banners green.

Tales that are Told

Missing

THE bass drummer of Booneville's band was about five feet high and rather deaf. All the same, he entertained high notions of his importance.

On occasions when the band paraded it invariably took the same course through the main street, but one day the leader, for some purpose known only to himself, turned down a by-street.

The drummer did not notice what was happening in front of hom, for to compensate for his lack of height he held his drum high before him. So with gaze concentrated on his music, he banged away, and marched straight ahead as usual.

About five minutes later he finished his part, and hearing no other instruments, he stopped. Part of the crowd had accompanied him, and they gave him a cheer. But he was ill at ease. He pushed his drum aside and gazed ahead; but he saw no band. Then, in uneasy astonishment, he turned to the smiling bystanders and inquired:

"Have any of you seen the remnants of a band?"

Steady!

THE major was approached by a young man who had obviously been in the service just long enough to draw his uniform. The youth failed to salute, but the major overlooked it.

"I say," began the youth, cordially, "ever drink anything?"

The major was truthful as well as kindly. He admitted that once in a while he took a small nip, and then turned away.

"Wait a minute," said the private. "I've got some here—"

This was too much for the major.

"Corporal of the guard!" he bawled.

"I say," protested the young man, "don't call your friends—there's only enough for two."

Really Lost

HE was a kind-hearted old gentleman, and it upset him to see the poor little chap crying.

"What's the matter, my little man?" he asked, sympathetically.

"I'm lost, boo-hoo!"

"Lost? Nonsense. You mustn't give up hope so soon. Where do you live?"

"Don't know," whined the youngster. "W-we've just moved, and I c-can't remember the address."

"Well, what's your name?"

"D-don't know."

"Don't know?"

"No," sobbed the boy. "M-mother got married again this morning."

An Oversight

"IT'S all through your wretched paper!" declared the angry man.

"What's the matter now?" asked the reporter.

"You stated the day before yesterday that a thief had entered my house, broken open my desk, stolen a sum of money, but that, fortunately, he had overlooked the gold watch which usually lies in the bottom of the drawer."

"Well, I believe the facts were stated correctly," said the reporter.

"They were correct enough," the injured man agreed, "but what is the result? The thief came again last night and took the watch!"

Guilty

AN OLD Negro was arrested for stealing chickens, and as he bore a rather bad reputation it was found difficult to secure counsel for him. At last a young lawyer took his case, to the great joy of the old fellow. At his trial the judged asked him:

"Are you the defendant?"

The old fellow was perplexed for a moment, and then replied:

"No, sah, dat's de defendant, sah," pointing to his counsel. "I'se de man wot stole de chickens."

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, May 7.—Diary of a modern Pepys: With Verne Porter to breakfast, and he boasted of an electric cigar lighter on his car that worked, and I pretended to believe him. So we to call on William MacHarg, but he immersed in literary labors and in no humor for roysterers.

Browsed among window displays, making mental purchases of this and that for gifts for friends, and saw a fellow who was the spit image of John Barrymore, the cinema Don Juan, but he needed a shave and I reckoned it could not be. Yet I once saw the late Robert Hilliard with egg stain on his vest.

Home to my chores and decided to give up French lessons because of utter linquistic dumbness, yet nothing so inspires my admiration as one who speaks French fluently. So with my wife to dinner, chatted awhile and to bed early.

Will Hays has—or at least he used to have before the oil mess—more fun at a social affair than any man I know, yet he neither drinks nor smokes. He is a willing recruit for one of those hastily organized quartettes that sings so seriously and sourly off key. If in the mood, he will remain until the last and be as effervescent as at the start. His obvious frailty hides boundless energy and enthusiasm and he can whoop life into a dead gathering in a jiffy.

Hays usually spends the week-ends with his family in Sullivan, Ind., taking along a brace of secretaries to attend the voluminous details of his job en route. Sunday morning finds him at the open forum of home town whittlers, and Monday afternoon he is back at his desk, guiding the destinies of the fifth—or is it fourth?—industry.

Around Broadway, after theater, is a deafening noise like the shout of children suddenly released from school. It is a tribute to New York's overtone of clamour. People must shout to be heard. A New Yorker does not realize how high his voice is pitched until he visits a quiet community, and then he senses a faint justification for that sneering salute: "Loud-talking New Yorkers."

* * *

Firemen give a lot of happiness to slum children who live in the neighborhood of fire stations. On hot evenings they provide a bathing soiree for the youngsters who array themselves in improvised bathing suits. Children line up in the streets and the hose is turned on them amid shouts of hysterical glee. There are mass attacks against the stream in football formation, and other playful didoes. Tired mothers watching from the stoops are also refreshed by the coolness that comes to the hot bricks and asphalt. For the little shavers, a small garden hose is utilized, and they, too, have their splash—often au naturel.

New York tenement children have a self-assurance rarely achieved in other cities. They do not cling to shadowy doorways in a brooding quiet. In London and Paris, slum children slink from passersby. But here they are alert and unabashed by squalor. They will be friendly, but you have a feeling they do not want your pity. The street is their playground and woe betide the careless motorist who invades their domain. He must go slowly and honk his approach every inch of the way, or he is likely to be dragged from his seat for a sound thrashing.

Real childish boredom is found among the starchily dressed children in charge of prim uniformed nurses along the mall in Central Park. Their expensive toys lie idle. They do not play, nor do they mingle.

In an hour's walk today I passed a bricked jewelry window, a store where there had been a safeblowing, and saw a daylight holdup man being escorted to a patrol wagon. There seems to be nothing to do but join the Pants Gang or clear out for the wilderness with a book.

Soap and Civilization

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There are many tests of the advance of civilization such as the condition of women, the increase of inventions, the use of machinery, etc, but perhaps one of the best tests is the use of soap.

Soap stands for cleanliness and that is a qualification that is quite modern. It is a far cry from the beauty of the past ages whose people rarely took a bath and used perfumes to counteract all bodily odors.

One of the characteristics of Americans and Englishmen is their bath-taking propensities. Some of them carry their bath tubs with them on traveling and the use of bath rooms in European hotels is a significant invasion.

When one gets used to cleanliness it is a luxury. What is more delightful than the smell of newly washed clothes? How lovely to crawl in between sheets that have just been washed!

Speaking of perfumes, probably the most aristocratic perfume, that is, one that stands highest in the opinion of refined people, is the perfume of good soap.

The manufacture of soap is an intricate process and requires highly specialized labor.

A certain company of soap makers plans making beads of soap, like little pearls, seen only under the magnifying glass to consist of hollow spheres with wall approximately five times as thin as those of ordinary soap flakes or chips. They dissolve instantaneously upon contact with water. They are made by dropping heated soap from a tower fifty feet high, the little particles forming into spheres in falling.

This idea in soap making is the culmination of many years of experimentation and research.

Great fortunes and great business successes are built up generally because men can produce something that satisfies an extensive demand.

The more soap used the healthier the people, and the sounder their mode of living.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Fight Fear With Love

HERE is the story of a coward. It is, in a way, the story of every human heart. And it holds "the secret of all heroism:

"Dear Elsie Robinson—

"Your article advising folks to grab themselves by the back of their necks and stand on their wobbly feet sure hit me an awful wallop. I've been yellow ever since I was born, I guess.

"My husband and I have been married 10 years and have one little girl. For her sake I would like to be somebody instead of a coward. I want her to be happy, self-reliant and courageous—in short, everything that I am not.

"It goes back so far. My father and mother were never happy. Many a time, before I was old enough to go to school, I have trembled in my mothers arms when Dad come home drunk, for fear he would kill her. He was a bully, but also a coward. I don't want to plead an alibi for my own fear—but according to the psychologists, childish fear has a great effect on adult life—sot hat early terror may be the cause of cowardice.

"Oh, Elsie, how can one live gallantly, as you say? How can I get rid of this terrible feeling that makes me dread every little thing? We are living with my husband's people and I am frightened all the time—I shrink from every word of criticism.

"I don't care for myself. I don't think I matter, but my little girl—she needs a brave mother. And I'm so afraid that I will fail her.

"Mrs. G. E. W."

How can you live gallantly?

You are living gallantly, my friend. There is no greater evidence of gallantry than that a man should face the truth about himself. That is the greatest courage, and because you have that courage you will win out without my advice. But perhaps I can make the going a little easier.

You say that you are filled with fear and you feel that this is an abnormal condition. It isn't. We all fight fear in one form or another. The greatest heroes have often had shaking hearts.

"Then how did they become brave?"

They became brave by exactly the same process that you are becoming brave—by loving something or someone more than themselves. They have not always loved a little child. They have sometimes loved an idea or a cause. They often became brave by loving God. But always there was some great desire and devotion in them which freed them from the grip of their cowardice.

That is the history of human courage. That is, indeed, the history of all human growth. The greater impulse triumphs over the lesser. That is the spark which God breathed into clay, which brought man up and up from out the slime.

You have that spark in you too. It burns when you think of your child. It will burn more and more fiercely as your love for that child grows. And that is the way to conquer fear. HELP THE SPARK BURN! Do not think of the thing you fear. Think of the thing you love. Every time fear comes to you, fight it with love. And, as you fight remember this—you are not alone in your fight. All the rest of the world is fighting with you. You are part of a great army, whose marching song resounds through all the ages.
